RUSSIANS PIERCE AUSTRIANS' LAST LINE IN GALICIA

Unofficial French Representative Arrives in Tokio to Discuss Situation Admittedly Altered by Bulgaria's Entrance Into War.

Reported That Grand Duke Nicholas Will Command Force That Will Join British and French.

Greece Is Said to Have Rejected Serbia's Plea for Assistance Under Terms of Treaty.

By Associated Press. PETROGRAD, Oct. 12.—Another victory has been won by the Russians on the Southern front, in Eastern Galicia. They have pierced the last line of Austrian defenses on the Strypa River and seized one of the strongest points on the Austro-German right flank.

Servians Slightly Delay German Advance; Village Is Captured. BERLIN, via London, Oct. 12.—The Austro-German invasion of Serbia is making progress, the War Office announced today, although the Servians by their resistance are interfering to some extent with the advance. A village and other positions south of Belgrade have been captured.

The War Office communication in regard to the Balkan campaign follows: "The resistance of the Servians is sufficient to hold up only slightly our forward movement. South of Belgrade the village of Zlatibor and the village of the village on both sides of Topolidera were stormed. Attacks upon Posarevac are continuing most favorably. The Posarevac-Gradiste road has been crossed in a southerly direction."

RUSSIAN ARMY TO JOIN ALLIES IN BALKAN CAMPAIGN

Reported That Grand Duke Nicholas Will Command Force—Greece Turns Down Serbia.

LONDON, Oct. 12.—Little Serbia has become the all important theater of war where the situation is admittedly serious for the entire allied cause. There is intense discussion today of the possibility that Japanese troops will be sent to aid the allies in the Balkans. Premier Vivian, in the French Chamber of Deputies yesterday, announced that "tomorrow Russian troops will be fighting by the side of the French and British soldiers."

A Central News dispatch from Paris today says Bulgaria formally has declared war on Serbia, following her invasion of that country, and Bucharest reports that word from the Bulgarian frontier is to the effect that a decision of war against Serbia will be posted throughout Bulgaria tonight. Bulgaria is the twelfth nation to enter the war.

As soon as the news of the Bulgarian attack on Serbia was received in London, the Bulgarian Minister was handed his passport.

There is considerable speculation as to where Russia will enter the Balkan conflict. It is reported that Grand Duke Nicholas is to command the Russian Balkan army, which, it is believed, in military circles, would make the Bulgarian people less willing to fight against Russia, there being a deep veneration among the Bulgarian peasants for the Emperor of Russia and his family.

It is understood that Italy has decided not to co-operate with the allies in the Balkans, the Italian Government taking the opinion that troops cannot be spared for any campaign other than that in Trentino and Trieste.

Servia Attacked on Two Sides.

The Austro-Germans, after their capture of Belgrade and Semendria, are advancing southward, while the Bulgarians have sent forces to endeavor to interrupt communications north and south of Nish, the war-time capital of Serbia, and attack the Serbs on the flank if they are driven back by the German Field Marshal, Von Mackensen. Emperor William is reported to have arrived at headquarters on the Balkan front.

The Servians are inflicting very heavy losses both on the Austro-Germans and Bulgarians, but with their army of about 250,000 men they are believed to have little chance of making any prolonged resistance against 300,000 or 400,000 Austro-Germans and probably 200,000 Bulgarians. They already are arranging for the transfer of the capital to Monastir, in the extreme southwestern corner of the kingdom.

The Athens correspondent of the Paris Matin says he has learned that the Servian Government having failed at Athens the question of Greece being called upon to give her support under the terms of the treaty of alliance, the Greek Government replied that the present aggressive action of Bulgaria had not a purely Balkan character and

FRENCH PREMIER REVEALS BALKAN POLICY OF ALLIES

He Declares in Speech to Deputies That Entente Governments Are in Full Accord.

TRIED TO KEEP PEACE

Charges Bulgaria With Bad Faith and Says Servia Will Get All Help She Asks For.

PARIS, Oct. 12.—In response to resolutions adopted by the Finance Committee and the Socialist group, urging the necessity of a complete and immediate explanation on the part of the Government, Premier Viviani in the Chamber of Deputies yesterday outlined the situation with respect to the Balkan States. The Premier said:

"The Balkan question was raised at the outset of the war, even before it came to the attention of the world. The Bucharest treaty had left in Bulgaria profound heartburnings. Neither King nor people were resigned to the loss of the fruits of the unjustifiable war they had waged upon their former allies. From the first day the allied Governments took into account the dangers of such a situation and sought a means to remedy it. Their policy has proceeded in the spirit of justice and generosity which has characterized the attitude of Great Britain, Russia and Italy, as well as France.

"We have attempted to re-establish the union of the Balkan peoples and in accord with them seek the realization of the principle of their national aspirations. The equilibrium thus obtained by mutual sacrifices really made by each would have been the best guarantee of future peace. Despite constant efforts in which Rumania, Greece and Servia lent their assistance, we have been unable to obtain the sincere collaboration of the Bulgarian Government. The difficulties respecting the negotiations were always at Sofia.

"Gallies Made by Bulgaria. Bulgaria made claims upon her four frontiers at the expense of her four neighbors. We had hoped that Rumania, Greece and Servia, to whom magnificent perspectives opened elsewhere, would consent to the sacrifices in exchange for which they would receive large compensation.

"As to Turkey, which had thrown herself into the arms of Germany, there was no need for further consideration. "Our efforts with Rumania were particularly successful. In their desire to give the Bulgarian people satisfaction in their aspirations, the powers of the quadruple entente did not hesitate to ask valiant Servia to make heavy concessions. As a Servian people made this extraordinary effort and resigned themselves. The equivocal attitude of the Bulgarian Government led the Greek Government to maintain a waiting policy. Our divers proposals, however, were rejected by the Bulgarian Government, which carried on parallel negotiations with our enemy. Finally, at the moment when the quadruple entente informed Bulgaria of the independent course which Servia was ready to make, King Ferdinand signed an accord with Turkey and engaged himself definitely with Germany.

"To our friendly question as to his intention, the response was Bulgarian mobilization, in connection with which the concentration of Austro-German troops on the Danube indicated united action against Servia.

"In the presence of this attitude we immediately declared null and void the advantages and guarantees that we had announced we were ready to offer Bulgaria and we have resumed with the other Balkan states our liberty of action toward them.

"From a moral standpoint and from the standpoint of military consequences, we could not accept the incoherence of Servia and the rupture of our communication with the allies. In order to support the Servians, we must go through Salonika and from the outset of the Bulgarian mobilization we have conducted negotiations toward that end with the President of the Council at Athens. The negotiations are most maturely in view of the definite treaty concluded between Servia and Greece after the second Balkan war, in the event of Bulgarian aggression.

"Definite Landing at Salonika. "They say," that we are violating the neutrality of Greece and they even dare to compare our action to that of Germany in violating the neutrality of Belgium. Surprised by this attitude, Servia plunging that noble country into fire and bloodshed. The conditions under which we want to Salonika, the conditions under which we debated, the welcome we received, suffice to demonstrate the stupidity of these accusations."

Safe Home Remedy for Skin-Troubles

Eczema, ringworm and other itching, burning skin eruptions are so easily made worse by improper treatment that one has to be very careful. There is one method, however, that never needs to be used, even on a baby's tender skin—that is the Resinol treatment.

Resinol is the prescription of a Baltimore doctor, put up in the form of resinol ointment and resinol soap. This proved so remarkably successful, that thousands of other physicians have prescribed it constantly for over twenty years. Resinol stops itching instantly, and almost always heals the eruption quickly and at little cost. Resinol ointment and resinol soap can be bought at any drugstore. Write for free samples, Dept. leged domination of the New Haven, that rivals, if it does not exceed, that collected in any other of the proceedings brought under the German antitrust law.

For the Government more than 100 witnesses have been subpoenaed, and it is believed that the trial will last three months at least. Much of the testimony adduced will undoubtedly be a repetition of matter brought out at the investigation of the New Haven by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The defendants have engaged a notable array of counsel, which includes, among others, Delaney, McGill, John G. Mulburn, Charles F. Choate, Richard V. Lindabury and Royal Victor.

The Government's case will be conducted by Frank M. Swacker, special assistant to the Attorney-General; James W. Osborn, special assistant, and other Government counsel.

Japan May Send Men to Fight With Allies in Balkans therefore did not come within the provisions of the Greco-Serbian treaty. The French in both the Champagne and Artois regions of France are conducting their offensive, but not on the scale of the recent attacks.

The Austro-Germans in the east have brought their offensive to an end, except in the region of Dvinsk, the Russians have recuperated wonderfully and are striking back.

The Russians seemingly have entirely regained the initiative especially in Galicia.

POSSIBILITY THAT JAPAN MAY SEND ARMY TO BALKANS

TOKIO, Oct. 12.—Bulgaria's participation in the war and advice received here from London that British opinion, in some quarters at least, favors the dispatch of Japanese troops to the Balkans have reopened the question in Tokyo of what Japan's future course will be. There is a strong impression here that the return from Paris today of Baron Kikuchi Iohai, the recently appointed Minister of Foreign Affairs, and previously Ambassador to France, is likely to be followed by a full reconsideration of the international situation with special reference to Japan's policy for the preservation of her own permanent interests.

Another factor in arousing discussion on this subject is the arrival of Hugues Le Roux, editor of the Paris Matin, who, although without official mission, comes, it is understood, with introductions from and the approbation of M. Delcasse, the French Foreign Minister, to discuss military questions with prominent Japanese with a view to determining whether the latest developments justify a change in Japan's decision not to send an army to aid her allies, and the likelihood of dispatching troops to the Balkans.

Sons of Bulgarian King Attached to Army Headquarters. SOFIA, Oct. 12.—In an order of the day, addressed to the army and navy, the Bulgarian King, King Ferdinand, in chief, Gen. Joffe expressed confidence in the valor and heroic fighting spirit of the troops, who, he says, will know how to repair the wrong done to the Bulgarian nation and will be faithful to their historic task to the end.

The Crown Prince Boris has been detailed for duty at the general headquarters and Prince Cyrille, second son of King Ferdinand, to the staff of the second army.

Germans Attack Near Soches; Capture Trench in Vosges.

PARIS, Oct. 13.—The Germans last evening attacked the French positions near Soches, according to the announcement this afternoon by the War Office, and were everywhere repulsed. In the Vosges the Germans were successful in gaining possession of a trench.

Germans Airship Heavily Bombed Troops in Dvinsk.

BERLIN, via London, Oct. 12.—Today's report from army headquarters, which records no important change on the eastern front, says a German airship last night bombed Dvinsk, which was filled with troops, with a large number of bombs.

The statement says the French lost portions of trenches east of Soches and lost a portion of their positions on the western slope of Schrammelle in the Vosges. British attacks northeast of Verdun and repeated attacks by the French in Champagne were driven off.

HOW LA SALLE STREET BANK MADE UP $1,250,000 CAPITAL

MORRIS, Ill., Oct. 12.—Details of the transactions that marked the change of the La Salle Street National Bank to the State Bank, known as the La Salle Street Trust and Savings Bank, were told today by Frank M. Spohr, former auditor of the State Bank. He took the stand in the trial of Charles B. Munday, former vice president of the La Salle Street Bank, charged with conspiracy in connection with the bank's collapse.

Spohr said his note for $125,000 was accepted by the bank with similar notes from nine others to make up the total of $1,250,000 capital stock of the State Bank. At that time he said he was worth only $12,000. The notes, he said, were placed to the credit of the men who signed them and the 10 then drew checks for the same amount payable to the bank. The bank then made up its check of $1,250,000 to the Central Trust Co. and on which that amount of currency was passed across the bank's counter and counted by the State Bank Examiner as a preliminary to granting the La Salle Trust and Savings Bank a State charter.

Spohr said that the $1,250,000 check got back to the La Salle Street Bank the same day it was drawn.

Cold Weather Rheumatism

of the blood, be worse in cold weather than in summer?

The rheumatic poison in the blood is the predisposing cause of the disease. If you have the latent in your blood, you may have rheumatism whenever the exciting cause stirs it to action. Cold weather and dampness are exciting causes of rheumatism. They excite to action something already in the blood, something that you must get rid of if you would be free from rheumatism.

What this something is, nobody knows. Not very long ago it was thought to be uric acid. Many doctors now think it a microscopic organism or a specific bacillus, but they cannot find the bacillus.

It is a known fact that in rheumatism the blood becomes thin rapidly, that building up the blood relieves the rheumatism and that there will be no return of the rheumatism as long as the condition of the blood is maintained. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are recommended for rheumatism because they keep the blood rich and red and free from rheumatic poisons. The free book, "Building Up the Blood," tells all about the treatment. Send for a copy. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Co., Worcester, Mass.

GIRL RUN DOWN AND SERIOUSLY INJURED BY AUTO

Miss Virginia McCarron Says She Didn't See Machine Until She Was Right in Front of It.

Miss Virginia McCarron, 18 years old, a graduate last year of Soldan High School, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John P. McCarron of 444 Cook avenue, was run down and seriously injured last night at Delmar boulevard and Euclid avenue by an automobile driven by Clair E. Stevens of 1409 Rowan avenue. Stevens took Miss McCarron to her home.

A doctor found Miss McCarron to be suffering from a fracture of the collar bone, a dislocated left shoulderblade and bruises about the face and hands, and internal injuries.

Miss McCarron had been visiting a friend, Miss Adele Smith of 200 Kingsbury boulevard, and was on her way home. She told her father that she was crossing from the south to the north side of Delmar near Euclid avenue and did not see the machine until she was right in front of it.

Stevens said that it was an unavoidable accident and he did not see Miss McCarron until she was in front of the machine. Stevens was arrested and released on bond.

DRIVER OF TRUCK WHICH KILLED STREET SWEEPER IS ACQUITTED

Jesse Reiff Was Charged With Fourth Degree Manslaughter.

After deliberating an hour and a half, a jury in Judge Cave's court last night acquitted Jesse Reiff of 370 Connecticut street of a charge of fourth degree manslaughter. Reiff, driving an automobile truck owned by the J. Michael Grocery Co., 133 Rutger street, ran down and killed Frank Zachar, 70 years old, a city street sweeper, of 1513 Mendon street, July 19 last at Ohio and Sidney streets.

Charles Moore of 343 Lucas avenue, a street inspector, testified that he was in charge of 10 men and two wagons at the corner. Zachar was working at the middle of the street intersection and a wagon was on either side of him. Moore said Reiff was driving "pretty fast" and did not sound his horn until he was within about four feet of Zachar. The sudden sound, he said, seemed to startle Zachar, who started backward and directly in front of the truck. He was carried 20 feet on the front of the machine and then dropped off and the car went over him, proceeding another 20 feet before it was stopped.

Henry Keppeler, a street superintendent, corroborated Moore's testimony. The truck, he said, was going 15 to 20 miles an hour. Reiff testified that his speed was 5 to 10 miles an hour.

GIRLS SAY DRIVER OF AUTO THAT KILLED MAN TRIED TO FLIRT

Witnesses at Inquest Into Death of Printer, Declare Negro Was Flirting, Not Attention to Machine.

Miss Edna Leroy and Miss Florence Boulton, both of 204 Chouteau avenue, testified this morning at the inquest into the death of John K. Kelly, who was killed by an automobile in front of 318 Market street, Oct. 3, that Sam Shepley, driver of the car, and Edward Johnson, a passenger, both negroes, were waving at them and attempting to flirt with them when Kelly was struck.

Their story was corroborated by Jacob Wieland, of 823 1/2 Market street, who said the machine was going fast and that he heard no horn. Wieland and the young women all declared that neither occupant of the automobile was paying any attention to where the machine was going. Kelly was struck as he stepped from the curb into the street.

Edward L. Harris, of 108 North Eleventh street, testified that the machine was not going fast and that it stopped within its own length. Harry S. Schriener, of 425 Morgan street, gave similar testimony, and Miss Leroy also declared that the machine was not going fast.

Shepley, who is at liberty on a conditional bond, refused to testify until the testimony of Johnson could be obtained, and the inquest was continued until tomorrow.

Kelly was a printer, 40 years old, single, and lived at 108 North Broadway.

FORMERERS FREED TO ARMENIANS AMERICAN SAYS

Professor Tells How Moslems Are Rapidly Decimating the Asiatic Christians.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—Ambassador Morgenthau has been directed to inquire of the Turkish Foreign Office, it was learned today, as to whether concessions regarding exemption from prosecution of Protestant and Catholic Armenians were being carried out. The concessions were made in response to recent representations by the United States, but "unofficial information has reached here indicating that the persecutions were continuing.

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—Further reports to the Armenians have been given by the American Committee on Armenian Atrocities in the form of a letter received from an American professor in an American college in Turkey. "Everyone," the committee explains, "familiar with the tenor and spirit of Turkey at the present time will readily understand why his name and more particulars as to the places cannot be given to the public now."

The writer says that during the last week in April the professor of Armenian at his college was arrested and imprisoned with 15 other prominent Armenians. Later he was taken to Sivas, where he died. On June 3 many of the leading men of the city including Professors Hagopian and Mammadian, were taken to the soldiers' barracks until the total number 1215.

Murderers Set Upon Victims. "As a place three hours distant from the city, on a lonely road leading to Elah, all of these men were brutally slain by the gendarmes and by men called chetives. Chetives are murderers who are paid to do the dirty work of the Government."

The writer also tells of the wholesale deportation during July of 12,000 persons from "that section of the city nearest to our institutions."

"The town of Samsoun was similarly emptied of its Armenian population, also Amasia, Yedig, Koprui, Chorum and all other towns and villages in the vicinity of Marsovan."

Many Dying From Hunger. "The last of August along the Anatolian railway," the writer says, "I saw 5,000 Armenians crowded in the fields and at stations along the road without adequate supply of food and no means of shelter. At Merkeke alone the station master told us there were 30,000 exiles. Many were weak from hunger, others almost dead."

The writer says that the American Consul said that the Turkish Government intended to exterminate the Armenians.

"The further said," the professor continues, "that when the Armenians were disposed of, the Greeks would be similarly treated and after that all other foreigners. It is like a chain of events. The Minister of War to our Ambassador, Mr. Morgenthau."

"The motive for these persecutions, according to officials, was the fear that Armenians would join the Central Powers in the bank while they were fighting their foreign enemies."

PRESIDENT LAYS CORNERSTONE OF NATIONAL AMPHITHEATER

Secretary Daniels Describes It as Temple to Men Who Gave Lives to Save Union.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—Laying of the corner stone of the new national memorial, on the grounds of the Central Cemetery, Wilson today, drew hundreds of spectators, including Government officials, members of patriotic organizations and others.

The affair was to have been a feature of the recent Grand Army centennial celebration, but because of a driving rainstorm they was postponed until today. Secretary Daniels was the principal speaker.

A feature of the exercise was the planting of two trees in front of the memorial, one in honor of Gen. George Washington and the other in honor of Gen. William T. Sherman. Congress appropriated $750,000 for the construction of the memorial. It probably will be dedicated Memorial day in 1917.

Secretary Daniels expressed his gratitude dedicated the amphitheater as a temple to the brave men whose sacrifice preserved forever the union of states.

"It is a substantial symbol, expressive of the national appreciation of valor," he said. "It marks the eternal cementing of the republic."

TAFT FAVORS LONGER TERM

Says President Should Be in Office 4 or 7 Years, in Speech at New York.

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—Former President Taft, lecturing on "The Presidency" at Columbia University yesterday, gave in a strong presidential term of six or seven years, state and national budget systems and a change of the veto power, or that portions of bills might be vetoed, allowing the good sections to become law.

Waiving of money in unnecessary public buildings and unneeded army posts was condemned.

VON JAGOW SAYS ALLIES VIOLATED GREEK NEUTRALITY

Landing of Troops at Saloiki Analogous to Invasion of Belgium, He Declares.

BERLIN, Oct. 12.—Foreign Minister von Jagow, in a statement given out to the papers today, declared that the only cause of England's entry into the war had been removed by the landing of troops of the allies in Greece, which was not founded on any such distressing emergency as was the case in Germany's invasion of Belgium. He further declared that the action removed all cause for continuing the war.

The Foreign Minister declared that Germany was forced to enter Belgium, but repeated to Belgium the most liberal offers to spare that country from war's horrors. It has not been announced, he declared, that the entente powers made similar guarantees for the security of Greece, but said it appeared that such was not the case. Instead, he declared, England and France violated Greek neutrality in the most brutal manner.

"The world's storm of indignation against Germany invading Belgium is 'out' or 'winded,'" von Jagow said. "English newspapers are taking the greatest pains to demonstrate that there is not the least analogy between Germany's entry of Belgium and the landing of English and French troops at Salonika under Gen. Hamilton. They emphasize the point that the Greek Government and Parliament forewent the right to protest against the entente's procedure with armed force; that the allies never had in view any action upon Greek territory which would be unwelcome to Greece."

"This latest assertion is inaccurate, for the Greek Government protested vigorously against the landing of Greek troops. It is a matter of fact that England and France's blamable action upon Greek territory which would be unwelcome to Greece."

"The landing of entente troops at Salonika was not founded on any distressing emergency. It was based entirely upon the ground of political and military opportunity."

50 TONS OF GERMAN DYE STUFFS TO ARRIVE IN NEW YORK TODAY

Shipment Consigned to Secretary of Commerce, Was Assured Safe Passage by British Government.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—Fifty tons of coal tar dyestuffs of German manufacture were due in New York today on the steamer St. Louis, consigned to the Secretary of Commerce. The shipment is for the account of William A. Mitchell of Lowell, Mass., representing the National Association of Cotton Manufacturers.

In a statement an official of the Commerce Department said:

"Several months ago the Secretary consented to act as consignee of two cargoes of dyes from Germany, for which safe passage were assured by permits granted by the British Government upon the express condition that the Secretary of Commerce would be the consignee of the cargo. The exportation of these cargoes from Germany has not been lifted. Arrangements were made, however, by American manufacturers with the British Government whereby the Government has permitted the exportation to the United States of the dyes coming on the St. Louis. It is hoped that this is the first of a series of similar shipments."

NIGHT RIDERS SENTENCED

Two Sikeston Men Will Serve Year Each in Leavenworth.

CAPE GIRARDEAU, Mo., Oct. 12.—Robert H. Harris and John H. Underwood of Sikeston, were sentenced yesterday to a year in the Leavenworth Penitentiary for stealing an automobile. The Federal court of having sent threatening letters through the mail to property owners in Sikeston. Five other Sikeston men were given sentences in jail equal to the men who were sentenced to the Cape Girardeau Jail before they were able to make bond, last summer, in most cases six months and 15 days, and were liberated. They were Ed Martin, George Jackson, J. S. Bryant, Thomas Linder and J. C. Lindsey.

These men were the so-called "Night Riders" of Sikeston, who were arrested at a meeting after letters were sent threatening to burn the Scott County Milling Co. plant unless certain demands concerning house rents and wages were complied with.

BECOMES THE BRIDE OF CLAYTON JUSTICE

MRS. L.F. MATTHEWS.

SUCCESSOR OF "MARRYING JUSTICE" SECRETLY WEDS

L. F. Matthews of Clayton and Delmar Garden Casket Married in St. Louis.

Justice of the Peace L. F. Matthews of Clayton, who has performed many marriages since he succeeded "Marrying Justice" Warren, was himself secretly married last night to Miss Harriet C. Baumhoff, cashier at Delmar Garden. The ceremony was performed at 10:30 o'clock by the Rev. W. J. Williamson in the parlor at the Third Baptist Church.

For some time Justice Matthews' friends have sought to learn when he was to be married, and he always put them off by saying, "At 5 o'clock tomorrow morning." Yesterday, after getting a marriage license at Clayton, he persuaded the clerk temporarily to misplace the license records. But friends learned that he had ordered a load of coal sent immediately to a new home on Hanley road, at Meridian, which he had furnished secretly. So they renewed their efforts and learned this morning of the wedding.

Matthews is a son of former State Senator B. L. Matthews. The bride is a daughter of Julius Baumhoff, who lives at Fee Fee road and the Grove Court car line. She is a niece of Fred Baumhoff, former postmaster of St. Louis, and George Baumhoff, who was general manager of the old St. Louis Transit Co. Matthews is 27, his bride is 22.

When Matthews started for lunch today he found that his automobile had disappeared. He started to take street car, but was overtaken by about 10 courteous officials and other hangers who seized and handcuffed him with his arms about a tree on the square. An hour later he was released.

TWO-YEAR SENTENCE FOR YOUTH WHO STOLE AUTO

Lee Turner and Another Boy Rode Away in Dr. H. D. Fritchett's Car.

Lee Turner, 18 years old, was sentenced in Judge Fisher's court last evening to serve two years in the penitentiary for stealing an automobile. He was paroled last year, after having been sentenced to a six months' term in the workhouse for the same offense, and the police believe he has been a leader among joyriding car thieves. Turner and another youth, it was charged, rode away in Dr. H. D. Fritchett's machine, after the physician had left it standing at Grand avenue and Morgan street, the night of April 17. The burst a moment later, and a city detective, who stopped them because of the noise their flat tire was making, noticed that a chain which had been used to lock the wheels, had been broken. He then arrested the two.

Family Absent, 3 Homes Robbed. Burglars yesterday ransacked three West End homes in the absence of the families. Jewelry valued at $250 and $1 in cash were taken from the residence of Mrs. Augusta Weil, 6004 Morgan street; clothing and a revolver were stolen from the home of Eugene Kennedy, 1815 Temple place, and $25.70 in cash was taken from the home of Henry C. Delbold, 209 West Pine boulevard.

DELCASSE, FOREIGN MINISTER, QUILTS FRENCH CABINET

Had Been in Ill Health—Premier Viviani Will Take Over His Portfolio.

PARIS, Oct. 12.—Foreign Minister Delcasse, who has been in ill health, resigned today. His resignation was accepted.

Premier Viviani announced the resignation of M. Delcasse and its acceptance at a meeting of the Cabinet council, presided over by President Poincaré. It was decided that the Premier should take over the portfolio of Foreign Affairs, with the presidency of the Council of Ministers.

The desire to obtain united support of all elements in Parliament in upholding the hands of the Government in dealing with foreign affairs, particularly the critical conditions in the Balkans, has brought about the change in the ministry.

Premier Viviani, in announcing the resignation of Foreign Minister Delcasse to the Chamber of Deputies, said that M. Delcasse first offered his letter of resignation upon his return from his recent trip to England, and also offered it last night. The Premier declared there had been no discord between M. Delcasse and the Government upon the nation's foreign policy.

There were cries in various parts of the Chamber of "Read the letter!" Other members called out "No! No!" Premier Viviani answered: "No one can oblige me to read that letter. I affirm that no discord has occurred between the Minister of Foreign Affairs and his colleagues. All the decisions have been taken in perfect accord and I have nothing more to say to the Chamber."

Premier Viviani then took his seat and Prof. Paul Painleve said he was addressed to hear the Premier express in veiled language a divergence between the Cabinet and its Minister of Foreign Affairs. Prof. Painleve spoke as president of the Committee of Foreign Affairs and said he spoke also in the names of the presidents of the committees of the army and the navy.

"We do not," he said, "take the responsibility for the expedition to Salonika. It is the Government which has taken it. France has taken some engagements that it cannot deny. It is, therefore, simply a question of co-ordination of our military efforts in order to spare the blood of our soldiers."

Prof. Painleve said the Chamber of Deputies was entitled to explain the reasons for the Government upon the measures taken for making the French army effective upon all fronts. He also alluded to the Balkans and their importance in relations to the German campaign.

Theophilus Delcasse has been one of the foremost of France's statesmen during the last 15 years, having to his credit, above all else, the inspiration which led to the formation of the Anglo-French entente cordiale. He was also credited with an effective influence in the settlement of differences between Russia and Great Britain making possible the formation of the Triple Entente.

As Foreign Minister in a former Cabinet, M. Delcasse aroused the bitter hostility of Germany where it was believed his policy aimed at the isolation of that nation. His efforts to extend influence in Northern Africa in particular were regarded with distrust in Germany and his Moroccan policy, leading to the crisis of 1911 between Paris and Berlin having resulted in his resignation after holding office for 11 years.

KEEP LOOKING YOUNG

It's Easy—If You Know Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets.

The secret of keeping young is to keep young. To do this you must wash your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a hollow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—simulated—without look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, prepared a valuable compound mixed with olive oil set on the liver and bowels which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for cathartics, are gentle in their action, yet always effective. They bring about that endurance of spirit, that clear complexion, that vigor which is secured by keeping the bowels and liver in perfect condition.

U. R. ORDERED TO RESTORE STOP AT LAUREL STREET

Pageant Theater and Washington Heights' Residents Win Fight Before State Board.

EFFECTIVE ON SATURDAY

Street Railways Attorney Opposed Change Before End of Period of Elimination Test.

Residents of Washington Heights and the owners of the new Pageant Theater won a hard-fought victory over the United Railways Co. today when the Public Service Commission at Jefferson City commanded the company to restore the eliminated stop at Laurel street on the Delmar Olive line. Laurel avenue runs south from Delmar boulevard, starting at a point two blocks west of De Baliviere avenue.

The Public Service Commission's order is that the stop must be restored next Saturday. This action was taken after the Pageant Theater Co. had filed an injunction suit in the St. Louis Circuit Court and a petition signed by 400 residents of the district south of Delmar boulevard between De Baliviere and Hamilton avenues has signed a petition asking for the restoration of the stop.

Attorney Eugene D. Farnham, Judge Arnold, before whom the injunction suit was filed, deferred action and advised that the complaint be taken up with the commission. This was done and arguments were made before the commission by Attorney R. Perry Spencer, representing the Pageant Theater Co. and Attorney William E. Baird of counsel for the United Railways Co.

Attorney Spencer, in his argument, said that one reason for restoring the stop was that the Pageant Theater, representing a considerable investment, had been opened opposite the head of Laurel street since the elimination of the stop, thus making a new point of destination for many passengers. He gave as a more important reason the fact that many Washington Heights residents had been greatly inconvenienced by the elimination of the stop.

South of Delmar boulevard there are no streets for a distance of 1700 feet between De Baliviere and Hamilton avenues. The reason for this is that the streets have been vacated or cut off to make room for the extensive sheds and barns of the United Railways Co.

Stop for Large Section. Before the stop was eliminated persons in the thickly settled residence district on Westminster place and on McPherson avenue reached the Delmar line by way of Laurel avenue. They now must walk east to De Baliviere or west to Hamilton, some of them being required to walk 800 feet further than when the Laurel street stop was in force.

The United Railways Co., through its counsel, strongly opposed the restoration of the stop. Attorney Baird argued that the commission had authorized a 60-day test by which certain stops were to be eliminated and it would be unfair to restore a stop within the 60 days.

The test period will end Dec. 1. Baird argued that if the test were interfered with it would be impossible for the company to learn the effect of the elimination of stops in saving time and facilitating traffic. It was also argued for the company that residents of Washington Heights might take the University cars south of their homes, instead of riding on the Delmar cars.

In reply to this, the petitioners, several of whom were examined as witnesses, pointed out that in order to reach the University cars, it would be necessary for them to cross the Wash-burn Railroad tracks, and that there were no sidewalks along the streets leading to the University line.

Attorney Baird today said it was "unfortunate" that the commission had restored the Laurel street stop before the end of the 60-day test period. Asked whether this action might be considered as a precedent for residents in other parts of the city, who might petition to have stops restored, Baird said that was a matter which rested with the Public Service Commission.

Japanese Prima Donna Would Wear American Evening Gowns if She Were Not So Little

Mme. Tamaki Miura Likes Our Manners and Our Food

Japanese Women Are Treated Too Badly, American Women Too Well, She Says—Can't Understand Suffragettes—More Brave Living Better Than So Much Brave Dying, Her Opinion of Hara Kari.

By Marguerite Martyn.

Apostle of moderation off the stage, the real little Japanese butterfly, who plays a role of intense passion and tragedy on the stage, professes to be.

"In Japan women are treated too badly," said Mme. Tamaki Miura of the Boston Opera Company. "They are kept shut up so they can't learn much. But in America women are treated too well. I do not like to see them go so far as to take the places of men. Me, I like to be in the middle between."

Without her expressive features I have had to help out her limited and labored English a little, but as she placed her small, chubby hands close together to describe the restricted life of the Oriental and stretched them wide apart to describe Western liberty, then pointed with a short forefinger to express the happy medium, her meaning was perfectly clear.

"And those English suffragettes," she added, "I cannot see how women want to do those things."

The vast dignity and hauteur expressed with her small shoulders as she said this explained what she meant. Of the ancient and honorable tradition among her countrymen to committing hara kari, she observed: "There are two kinds of people in Japan now. The old ones believe it is the extreme of valor to make bare life. And the new ones think it is quite bad."

"Me," she said, "I do not forget the example of Gen. Nogi and people like him. Gen. Nogi thought we were becoming too luxurious in Japan while our country is poor, and he wished to remind the young men of the old patriotism. But it was a very great pity to lose that great General. I believe in the middle way, not so much dying brave and more living brave."

"But I am inclined to think her declaration in favor of moderation is more or less of a theory. There was one brief moment when she betrayed intensity of feeling which made one think she would risk to the occasion dramatically when she sang the role of Madame Butterfly. Words would be incapable of expressing the fervor she put into this utterance: 'This terrible, terrible war! It is cruel. Japanese women hate war. But Japanese soldiers are the most brave in the world. If we had not good diplomats our country would be always at war.'"

Addressed to Husband
M. ZUKKURI, her husband, who sat opposite at the luncheon where I came upon them, laughed to belittle his wife's gravity. But she only frowned more severely. I did not learn whether Mr. Zukkuri speaks English or not, for the little lady did not believe in women taking men's places, interpreted every remark I addressed to him and replied before he could frame words.

She is less than 5 feet tall and as she perched upon the edge of her chair in a futile effort to make her feet touch the floor, she looked in her native dress like a butterfly, just alighted.

Twice this week Mrs. Miura has welcomed woman pioneers, the first of her kind—in the one case, the first woman Senator, and now the first Japanese prima donna.

"I learned to sing in Tokio from English, German and Norwegian masters," said Mme. Miura, "and when I wanted to see how other women sang upon the stage I had to go to foreign lands, for no women sing upon the stage in Japan. We have actresses, but it is thought very low class to be an actress. The men take the women's parts and they are very clever, too, except in the voice. They cannot give the real woman's voice."

"I had had a late breakfast at the Jefferson, I understood, and now at 11:30 they were sampling another and strangely varied order of food—for amusement, I fancy, or in sheer loneliness and the want of something to do."

"We did not like much the food in Germany," she said. "It was so much seasoned and I lost my appetite. In England I could not taste anything and had to have something to shake salt out of on everything. But here the food is just right and I am getting my appetite back." She nibbled at spinach, at a spaghetti concoction and at a meat jelly. A discussion in Japanese resulted in an exchange between them of a dish or two.

Japanese Think That Americans Dislike Them

"N Japan we think Americans do not like Japanese, but here I find quite the opposite is true," said Mme. Miura. "The minute I got on an American ship I saw how kind Americans are. I was dreadful sick and those ladies were so kind. In Chicago I made my first appearance and I was dreadful nervous. But after I sang many people were very kind and I had no more reason to be nervous. I am very nervous here, too. I went the opera last night and it was such a big house and the galleries so far away."

"How did you like American ladies in evening dress?" I asked her.

"Oh, fine," she replied. "I had so fine like the American ladies. I would dress just like that." Husband picked up his ears and looked at her incredulously, but he seemed reassured when she added:

"But cannot because I am so little. And then, I am so fat inside," she punched her sides with her fore fingers. "I could not be comfortable in such clothes."

She was attired in a modest morning costume, a prettily bright blue crepe kimono, wonderfully embroidered in white. Her thick, black hair was done in a crude imitation of our style of hair dressing. Curling tongs had had the effect of staining it in places, but produced no other effect upon its straightness. Around her waist was wound a thick sash splashed with big orange and scarlet flowers. Bunched up in a huge roll at the back it made her look like a butterfly, wings and all. I could not restrain my admiration.

"Oh, I have many objects," she said, complacently. "Some that I cannot put on by myself, they are so thick and stiff."

"In America you are Just Natural," She Says
"What do you think of American manners?" I asked.

"Oh, fine," she replied. "In Japan we are too polite, too ceremonious. In England the people were stiff and cold in their manners, though I think they were kind. But in America you are just natural. I like much the Americans. I shall write to Japan and tell them it is quite opposite from what they think of Americans."

Asked when she expected to return to her country, she replied, "We are in New York three weeks ago. We are returning to New York the twentieth night. But maybe we don't return to Japan."

She exchanged some laughing and gleeful looks with her husband, then turned to me and confessed: "I wish to have my mother and father and brothers come to America and not return soon to Japan."

"My family object very much to have me in opera, but I kept saying high art is never low class. I went on trying to be a great artist. And now many papers in Japan tell good things of me and I don't know, but maybe my people will not be ashamed of me when I come back."

TRUST COMPANY HOLDS DIRECTORS FOR PART OF LOAN

They Guaranteed $200,000 of $600,000 Transaction by Commonwealth Institution.

The suit of the Commonwealth Trust Co., filed Monday, to collect $100,000 from the estate of James Green, who was a director of the trust company, reveals that the individual members of the board of directors personally guaranteed to the extent of $200,000 a $600,000 loan which the trust company made to E. A. Tennis and B. M. McCue and the Kansas Construction and Irrigation Co.

The guaranty was made by the directors after a bank examiner had criticized the loan as being excessive. The loan was investigated by A. N. Edwards, president of the trust company, and W. C. Fordyce, and approved by the board of directors.

When the bank examiner insisted that the loan should not have been for more than $400,000, the directors all signed a guaranty for certain amounts. Green, according to the petition filed in the suit, agreed to stand good for $100,000. The other directors were: A. N. Edwards, W. C. Fordyce, Sam Lazarus and Edward F. Goltz, $25,000 each; Edward L. Preston, Tom Randolph, Samuel W. Fordyce Jr., C. R. Seudder, Elias Michael, M. B. Wallace and Otto F. Stifel, $10,000 each, and E. H. Simmons and Edward Hildebrand, $5,000 each.

The loan was obtained to build a short railroad in Kansas. Tennis, McCue and the construction company all failed. The Commonwealth was forced to foreclose on its mortgage, and took over the property and is now operating it. It is asserted in the petition that the losses on the loan were in excess of $200,000, and that the directors who signed the guaranty are responsible to the trust company for the amount for which they indorsed.

The directors of the trust company were not in any way interested in the Kansas enterprise, and merely indorsed the note to protect the trust company from any losses. But, it is said, will be filed against all the directors who do not pay up the amount of their guaranty. The loan was made in 1912.

The trust company is in process of liquidation, its business having been absorbed by the Guardian Trust Co.

PRICE ON ELECTRIC PLANT TOO HIGH, ALDERMAN SAYS

Properties Offered for $30,000, 000 Valued by City Board in 1911 at $18,000,000.

Barney L. Schwartz, chairman of the Aldermanic committee investigating the feasibility of a municipal electric light plant, told a Post-Dispatch reporter today that he thought A. C. Einstein's statement that it would cost the city $30,000,000 to duplicate the Union Electric plant was preposterous.

Einstein, the vice president and general manager of Union Electric, made this estimate yesterday when he told the committee that the North American, holding company for the Union Electric, would be willing to sell the Union Electric to the city if the city finally decided to embark into the electric business.

"Einstein mentioned the amount of Union Electric bonds outstanding at $17,000,000 and the outstanding common stock at $3,800,000," chairman Schwartz said. "But this is no criterion of the company's value. A much better indication of the United Electric's value is the report of the St. Louis Public Service Commission, made Jan. 1, 1911, in which the commission found the physical properties, that went into the earning value to be allowed to the company, were worth less than $18,000,000."

"This commission made a detailed inventory of the Union Electric's property, counting the poles and measuring the wires. Its appraisal cannot be much in error."

Alderman Schwartz was asked just how determined he was to move to establish a municipal electric plant. "I cannot answer for anybody else," he replied. "Not even for the other members of the investigating committee. But after investigation at Detroit, Cleveland and Toronto, I was convinced that the municipal plants in those cities were successful and I got the impression that the people in those cities were very well pleased with the success of their municipal plants."

"As to the situation in St. Louis, I am in the attitude of a juror. The committee is investigating carefully all the facts concerning the Union Electric, and one of its sources of supply, the Keokuk Dam. Until I have gathered all the information possible I shall not make up my mind whether a municipal plant would be advisable in St. Louis."

Hooker Uncertain on Attitude. Director of Public Utilities Hooker would not express an opinion on whether he thought the administration seriously intended to go into the electric business. He said he had given the aldermanic committee all data he had on municipal plants, and that the question was a matter of legislative policy that would have to be determined by the committee.

Mayor Kiel was in Chicago today attending a convention of the Jovian order, an organization of electrical men. He was the guest of Einstein and went in a special train with about 100 St. Louisans. In previous interviews the Mayor has stated he thought cheaper electricity would be a great thing for St. Louis, and that he favored a municipal plant, if such a plant could bring about cheaper rates without burdening taxpayers. He thinks Cleveland's municipal plant, which gives a maximum rate of 3 cents, is a blessing to that town. The Union Electric's maximum rate is 10 cents a gross.

PRICE ON ELECTRIC PLANT TOO HIGH, ALDERMAN SAYS

Properties Offered for $30,000, 000 Valued by City Board in 1911 at $18,000,000.

Barney L. Schwartz, chairman of the Aldermanic committee investigating the feasibility of a municipal electric light plant, told a Post-Dispatch reporter today that he thought A. C. Einstein's statement that it would cost the city $30,000,000 to duplicate the Union Electric plant was preposterous.

Einstein, the vice president and general manager of Union Electric, made this estimate yesterday when he told the committee that the North American, holding company for the Union Electric, would be willing to sell the Union Electric to the city if the city finally decided to embark into the electric business.

"Einstein mentioned the amount of Union Electric bonds outstanding at $17,000,000 and the outstanding common stock at $3,800,000," chairman Schwartz said. "But this is no criterion of the company's value. A much better indication of the United Electric's value is the report of the St. Louis Public Service Commission, made Jan. 1, 1911, in which the commission found the physical properties, that went into the earning value to be allowed to the company, were worth less than $18,000,000."

"This commission made a detailed inventory of the Union Electric's property, counting the poles and measuring the wires. Its appraisal cannot be much in error."

Alderman Schwartz was asked just how determined he was to move to establish a municipal electric plant. "I cannot answer for anybody else," he replied. "Not even for the other members of the investigating committee. But after investigation at Detroit, Cleveland and Toronto, I was convinced that the municipal plants in those cities were successful and I got the impression that the people in those cities were very well pleased with the success of their municipal plants."

"As to the situation in St. Louis, I am in the attitude of a juror. The committee is investigating carefully all the facts concerning the Union Electric, and one of its sources of supply, the Keokuk Dam. Until I have gathered all the information possible I shall not make up my mind whether a municipal plant would be advisable in St. Louis."

Hooker Uncertain on Attitude. Director of Public Utilities Hooker would not express an opinion on whether he thought the administration seriously intended to go into the electric business. He said he had given the aldermanic committee all data he had on municipal plants, and that the question was a matter of legislative policy that would have to be determined by the committee.

"I think if more suffering women would take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound they would enjoy better health. I suffered from a female trouble, and the doctors decided I had a tumorous growth and would have to be operated upon, but I refused as I do not believe in operations. I had fainting spells, bloated, and could hardly stand the pain in my left side. My husband insisted that I try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I am so thankful I did, for I am now a well woman. I sleep better, do all my housework and take long walks. I never fail to praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for my good health."

—Mrs. J. M. RESCH, 1900 West Broadway, Louisville, Ky.

Since we guarantee that all testimonials which we publish are genuine, it is not fair to suppose that if Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has the virtue to help these women it will help any other woman who is suffering in like manner!

If you are ill do not drag along until an operation is necessary, but at once take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential), Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

NEW SOCIOLOGICAL PLAY, 'THE UNBORN,' TO BE PRODUCED

Sponsor, Who Had "Damaged Goods" Presented, Has Support of Prominent Persons.

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—With the support of prominent men and women, Frederic P. Robinson, president of the Musical Review of Reviews will produce "The Unborn," a play by Beulah Turner, in a New York theater on the afternoon of Nov. 5. Robinson brought about the presentation here of "Damaged Goods," and he asserts that "The Unborn" has equal sociological importance.

The new play promises to present an argument for race suicide. Its heroine is a young wife who, because of an epileptic and alcoholic strain in her family, would have no offspring. Frightfully distressed by the approach of motherhood, she pleads that science prevent birth. The plea is ignored. The son who is born develops all that she had feared. Besides, her parental distress has formed in the child a hatred for her. In manhood the tragedy of the unwanted child rises to a climax. His intended marriage brings disillusion and hopelessness.

Among the sponsors of this drama are John Burroughs, Elbert H. Gary, James E. Peffer, Henry Morganthau, Mr. O. H. Belmont, Princess Troubetzkoy (Amelle Rives), Ella Wheeler Wilcox, Judge Ben B. Lindsey of Denver, and the Rev. Dr. Parkhurst. According to the Musical Review of Reviews, the first audience will include besides these John Wanamaker, Otto H. Kahn, Nathan Straus, Dr. Anna Howard Shaw, Dr. Talcott Williams, Dr. A. Jacob, City Chamberlain Bruere and Borough President Marks.

"The right of the child to be well born and the right of the wife to decide whether and when she is to be a mother are problems the solution of which society can no longer ignore," Robinson said today.

BRINGS BACK FIVE TONGUES

ELLSWORTH, Kan., Oct. 13.—Reinhardt Rens, who went to Europe seven years ago for a "pew" company, has returned on account of the war. When he went to Europe he could speak only English. His time was spent in England, France, Austria, Germany, Rumania, Greece and Russia. Now he can speak five languages.

While in Germany Rens married a German girl and expects to return there to live at the close of the war.

LETTER TRAVELS THREE YEARS

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Oct. 13.—A registered letter, containing a letter of age from Vancouver, B. C., by J. A. Fitzsimmons to D. C. Kling, Occident, Oaxaca, Mexico, has just been received in Long Beach.

Twenty-three postmarks showed the trail of its travels. From Vancouver to Mexico and back it went. The second time the letter was received in Mexico, Postmaster Gomez directed it to Los Angeles. Finally it reached its destination at its third year.

The sender happened to be in Los Angeles and was notified by Kling that the letter had been received in Vancouver three years ago had arrived safely.

NO LAW ALLOWING GORDON TO TRAVEL AT STATE EXPENSE

Two Immediate Predecessors Did Not Draw Money for Trips to Conventions.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 12.—Though State Auditor John P. Gordon holds that custom justified him charging up against the State treasury the expenses of a trip to Salt Lake when he attended a convention of state auditors, Aug. 11 to Aug. 24 last, a careful study of the laws governing his office has failed to show any such authorization.

The records on file in the Auditor's office also show that it was not the custom of his two immediate predecessors to charge up such expenses to the State. In creating the office of State Auditor, the Constitution of Missouri provides that "he shall reside at the seat of government during his term of office, and keep the public records, books and papers there, and shall perform such duties as may be prescribed by law."

Trips Not Authorized.
In a list of more than 100 duties the Legislature has imposed upon that office by statute, under the foregoing provision of the Constitution, nowhere does it require or authorize him to make trips out of the State to attend conventions or to make such trips for any other purpose.

The records show that Gordon's immediate predecessor, William W. Wilder did not travel out of the State at the expense of the public treasury. Nor do the records show that Albert O. Allen, who preceded Wilder, made trips, the expense of which was paid out of his contingent appropriation.

The records show, however, that under the head of personal expenses, Auditor Gordon has drawn from his contingent fund since he went into office $32,27. Of this amount $20,121 was the expense of his trip to Salt Lake City in August. The other amounts spent in other years since Gordon has been in office are: 1909, $24.69; 1910, $127.88; 1911, $64.95; 1912, $12.63; 1913, $327.90; 1914, $40.41.

A peculiar feature of the expense of the Salt Lake trip made by the Auditor is the length of time consumed on the way. The expense account filed by him recites that he was gone from Aug. 11 to Aug. 24.

The convention of State Auditors which he attended there, met on Aug. 19, 20 and 21. The time required to travel by rail from Jefferson City to Salt Lake City is less than two days. Gordon arrived at Salt Lake City on Aug. 17 and checked out at the Utah Hotel there on Aug. 22. He filed a hotel bill for $25.50, in addition to an item in the expense account of $25 for meals on the train.

Refuses to Discuss Hotel Bill.
Gordon refused to explain the length of time spent on the trip, according to his expense account, and also refused to discuss the amount of his hotel bill. "There it is," he said, "you can see it for yourself. I have nothing else to say, and no explanations to make."

When a reporter asked to see the vouchers for amounts paid to him in other years, which are listed in his official report under the items, "Gordon, John P., expenses," he said he would get them out sometime during the day.

ST. LOUIS DEPRIVED OF MILLIONS BY THOSE WHO BUY IN NEW YORK

Head of Buy-in-St. Louis League Tells Advertising Club Trade Is More Than $5,000,000 Annually.

St. Louisans who buy their personal wearing apparel in New York instead of in St. Louis, cultivate a commercial snobbery that deprives local merchants of $5,000,000 in trade annually, Richard S. Hawes told the Advertising Club yesterday in a speech at their luncheon. Hawes is vice president of the Third National Bank and chairman of the Administrative Committee of the Buy-in-St. Louis League.

Hawes said a merchant told him that if these persons who go East to supply their personal wants would trade at home, St. Louis merchants could afford to put 1000 more persons to work here. The Buy-in-St. Louis League, Hawes said, is educating St. Louisians to boost their town by making their purchases here.

Merchants, he said, also are purchasing some of their stocks here, instead of sending buyers to New York for merchandise of no better quality than is to be found here.

CHANGES IN RUSSIAN CABINET

Alexander Volshin Appointed Procurator-General of Holy Synod.

LONDON, Oct. 12.—A dispatch to the Daily Telegraph from Petrograd says: "Alexander Volshin has been appointed the new Procurator-General of the Holy Synod. He has been the head of the general department of the Ministry of Interior and is credited with being the initiator of the recently adopted statute extending residential rights to the Jews. "Other Cabinet changes are imminent. It is stated that the Ministers of Agriculture (M. Khvostov) and Education (Count Ignatieff) and Controller-General Haritonoff, have all resigned, but that for the present their resignations have not been accepted. Alexi Khvostov, the new Russian Minister of the Interior, will remain a member of the Duma. This establishes a precedent."

SIMMONS TELLS TRAFFIC CLUB
HOW BUSINESS IS REVIVING

George W. Simmons, vice president of the Simmons Hardware Co., in a speech before the Traffic Club at the Mercantile Club rooms, told how business is reviving. His observations were the result of a month's trip over much of the United States.

All over the country, he said, trade is increasing in volume. Farm products are high and profitable to the farmer. Grain is moving in immense volumes, which, he says, means that the farmers have money to spend. Collections have improved to a great extent within the last two weeks.

Fundamental conditions in the South today, Simmons said, are sound and wholesome as never before in the history of that section. The South is practically self-sustaining as to food for both man and beast, having raised its largest grain crop, in addition to more fruits and vegetables than ever before. The small cotton crop commands a very high price. St. Louis, he said, is certain to feel the great difference in Southern trade this year, for the Southern people are going to buy freely.

The sentiment that no hyphenated Americans are wanted in the United States, voiced by the Rev. Dr. W. C. Bittling, pastor of the Second Baptist Church, was greeted with prolonged cheers by the 400 members of the American Meat Packers' Association attending the elaborate banquet at the Jefferson Hotel last night.

PACKERS PLEDGE
LOYALTY TO U. S.
AT BIG BANQUET

Dr. Bittling's Sentiment, "No Hyphenated Americans Wanted,"
Cheered by 400 Guests.

The sentiment that no hyphenated Americans are wanted in the United States, voiced by the Rev. Dr. W. C. Bittling, pastor of the Second Baptist Church, was greeted with prolonged cheers by the 400 members of the American Meat Packers' Association attending the elaborate banquet at the Jefferson Hotel last night.

Dr. Bittling was talking to the packers on the ethical by-product of business, and had just told them that public opinion was demanding to know of the millionaire how he got his money, in what spirit he was holding it, and what use he was making of it, when he launched into a discussion of hyphenated Americans.

"We want no German-Americans and no Irish-Americans in this country," he exclaimed. "If you are not satisfied to be simply Americans, for God's sake go back where you came from."

There were many guests at the banquet who were born in European countries, but all joined in the storm of applause. Before the close of the banquet the delegates took a pledge of allegiance to "the flag and the republic for which it stands; one nation united, with liberty and justice to all." The pledge was proposed by Walker Hill, president of the Mechanics-American National Bank, who was toastmaster, and was repeated aloud by all the delegates.

Toast to President Wilson.

These unusual features were the hits of a banquet which was a radical departure from the usual kind. There was no discussion of shop, and no speech by any representative of the meat-packing industry. The patriotism of the delegates, who came from every part of the United States, and many of whom were born in Germany, England and Ireland, was aroused by the exhortation of Dr. Bittling and the pledge proposed by Hill. A toast to President Wilson also was drunk.

Dr. Bittling said that he was one preacher who was not trying to get men to heaven, but heaven into men, and not trying to keep men from going to hell, but to kick hell out of men. He declared that the world was resenting the snobbery of the rich man who thought that his money made him better than other people. He proclaimed that the day was at hand when manhood triumphs over Mammon, and when a man is not judged by what he has, but by the spirit in which he holds it and the use he makes of it.

Dr. R. Emmet Kane, president of the St. Louis Medical Society, was the only speaker besides Dr. Bittling and Hill. Noel Popping's orchestra of 40 pieces played during the evening, and Lambert Murphy, tenor of the Metropolitan Opera Company of New York, sang a cycle of classic songs. The St. Louis Entertainment Committee spent nearly $1000 for music alone.

12-Course Dinner Served. One novelty of the dinner was ice cream in the form of a pig. Costly souvenirs were presented to the guests, the principal one being a silver cigar case. A packing house display was arranged by the Jefferson Hotel management, at the entrance to the banquet hall. Carcasses of pigs hugging bottles of champagne and drinking wine from the faucet of a barrel foreshadowed the feast in store for the packers. Each guest, who served without limit, had food from the banquet paid $10 for his ticket, but the cost to the Entertainment Committee was about $20 a plate.

The packing interests of St. Louis raised a fund of approximately $30,000 for the entertainment of the delegates. J. J. P. Langton was chairman of the Banquet Committee, which arranged the elaborate dinner and music program.

The packers held a short business session at the Planters Hotel this morning and left in automobiles at 10 a. m. to spend the remainder of the day sightseeing in and around St. Louis. A luncheon at Sunset Inn was included in the program.

Fred Frey, president of the Krey Packing Co. of St. Louis, was elected president of the Packers' Association at the business meeting yesterday afternoon. The other officers elected were: Albert Rohe, New York, vice president; George L. McCarthy, New York, secretary; Max N. Asgar, Cincinnati, treasurer. F. R. Burrows of Chicago was elected chairman of the Executive Committee. The convention did not determine where the next convention would be held, that function being left to the Executive Committee.

FOUND TO HAVE BROKEN LEG

Placed in the City Dispensary Inebriate Ward Without Examination by Physicians.

After John Daly, 73 years old, of the Erie House, Fourth street and Clark avenue, had spent the night in the city dispensary inebriate ward, it was discovered that his right leg was broken.

He was taken to the city hospital. Patrolman Reeves found Daly lying on the sidewalk at Sixth and Locust streets at 6 p. m. yesterday. Daly was intoxicated, he reported, and unable to rise. Reeves called an ambulance, and accompanied Daly to the dispensary, where he was placed in the inebriate ward without examination by a physician.

One of the Most Sensational Sales of Shoes for Women Ever Held in St. Louis Will Begin in Our Basement Tomorrow

Only Five of the Many Styles

Choice From 4000 Pairs at Savings of 1/3 to 2/3

Tomorrow morning we will launch what we believe to be the greatest and most sensational Shoe Sale ever held in this store, or in Saint Louis.

Because of its very magnitude we have been compelled to place these Shoes on sale in an entirely different section of our store. Special quarters have been provided in the Basement where all of these Shoes will remain on sale while they last.

Plenty of extra, experienced salespeople have been employed, so that you may be waited upon with reasonable promptness.

If you will need, or expect to need, new Footwear, you will be overlooking one of the most remarkable opportunities in the history of Saint Louis if you fail to attend this event.

While we will have all sizes and widths to start, we advise early shopping as they are sure to become broken later.

Slippers Which Are Termed "Factory Rejects"

At the same time we will offer about 1500 pairs of Women's Shoes and Slippers which are known as "Factory Rejects," because of being slightly soiled, mused or rubbed, but otherwise in perfect condition.

This Shoe Company is one of the large and well-known factories whose annual output is about 2,000,000 pairs. Where a mis-stitch, a scratch or a soiled shoe condemns it in the eyes of their expert examiners, such shoes are set aside and disposed of in a Factory Sale.

In this collection there are Boots, Oxfords and Slippers—of patent leather, calfskin, kid and tan leather, in a good range of sizes and widths.

This is a rare offering, owing to the fact that large stores in every city bid for the privilege of securing such high-grade shoes as these for a sale.

"She's Always Well Dressed"

HOW pleasant it is to have your friends admire your clothes. It is one of the highest compliments that can be paid you.

It means unstinted approval of your good taste in choosing styles and colors that are fashionable, that are becoming. It certainly means admiration for your choice of garments and your knowledge of what is truly worth while in dress.

Many women are frequently complimented on the good fit, the smart style and becomingness of their suits. You, too, will have the same experience, when you wear

Wooltex Tailored Suits

If you are already a wearer of Wooltex tailored garments, we know you'll be glad to see the new Fall styles. If you have never worn Wooltex, you cannot get acquainted too soon for the sake of your own pleasure and satisfaction.

There is so much charm and grace in every Wooltex tailored suit or coat, whether it be for the svelte figure, for one tending to stoutness, or for the young lady just approaching womanhood. Each type has been studied out, and for each type appropriate designs have been created.

We Have Suits at $25 to $65
Coats at $18.75 to $69.50

Women who wear Wooltex garments are always well dressed, because the styles are correct without the transient extreme features; because Wooltex garments are made of pure wool, pre-shrunk fabrics; because every garment is as carefully tailored as a custom-tailor could make it.

THE GREATEST MEDICAL AUTHORITIES IN THE WORLD

Endorse the Value of such ingredients as are contained in FATHER JOHN'S MEDICINE

A Body Builder—For Throat and Lungs

Free From Alcohol and Dangerous Drugs—50 Years in Use—Guaranteed.

The most eminent medical authorities, recognized all over the world as the highest in the science of medicine, have made public statements endorsing the value of such ingredients as we guarantee are the principal ingredients of Father John's Medicine.

High medical authorities say "that these ingredients are beneficial notably in wasting diseases which are curable and those maladies which are connected with or have their origin in colds and debility and wasting diseases."

To give so statements in full would take too much space, but we will furnish on application the list of ingredients of Father John's Medicine, the names of the medical authorities referred to, what they say, the publications and the dates of same.

The history of the medicine is true and we guarantee to give $25,000.00 to any charitable institution if shown otherwise.

Father John's Medicine is recommended for coughs, colds and throat and lung troubles, and to make flesh and strength. It is not a patent medicine, and does not contain alcohol or poisonous drugs. It has been in use over 50 years.

FATHER JOHN'S MEDICINE WAS SO NAMED BY THE PEOPLE.

Father John's Medicine is a physician's prescription. Prescribed for the Rev. Father John O'Brien of Lowell, Mass., by an eminent specialist, in 1855.

Father John recommended this prescription to his parishioners and friends and in this way it became known as Father John's Medicine.—ADV.

DANIELS' PROGRAM IS TO DOUBLE SIZE OF NAVY IN 5 YEARS

Details of Plans Call for Building of 15 to 20 Dreadnoughts and Battle Cruisers.

By Associated Press. WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—A new American fleet of dreadnoughts, battle cruisers, submarines and other necessary auxiliaries is contemplated by Secretary Daniels.

A five-year naval program is proposed, at the end of which time from 15 to 20 dreadnoughts and battle cruisers, nearly 100 submarines, about 70 destroyers and several scout cruisers and a proportionate number of auxiliaries would be added to the present fleet. With the 70 submarines already built and building, the total undersea craft would total about 170 in five years.

The estimated cost for the first year, which would include provision for at least 8000 additional men for the ships, is approximately $24,000,000, or about $100,000,000 increase over last year.

The completed program probably will be laid before President Wilson within a few days by Secretary Daniels. They are agreed that it will be necessary to practically double the present fleet in the next five years in order to be adequately prepared for defense.

The General Board has been consistently recommending four battleships a year, but last year Congress provided only two in the regular program, although the building of a third dreadnought was made possible by the sale of the battleships Mississippi and Idaho to Greece.

The previous year only one battleship was granted. The General Board's original plan of having a fleet of 48 first-class battleships by 1920 consequently has suffered materially.

It is understood that after studying the naval program carefully President Wilson intends to discuss it in his annual message and to make of it an administration measure.

It is not known what the plans of the navy are for the organization of the new fleet, but the general belief is that the fleet of having a fleet in the Pacific will figure materially in the program.

MANY NEWSPAPERS FOUND TO FAVOR GIVING WOMEN VOTES

Literary Digest Says 391 Editors Voted "Aye," 97 No and 38 Were Undecided.

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—The Literary Digest has taken a poll of the press of the United States on the question of woman suffrage and the results show "the ayes have it."

Letters were sent to 1000 newspapers in all parts of the country requesting that they answer two questions: one to determine the editorial attitude toward the proposition and the other to discover the sentiment of the community represented. A total of 526 replies was received and every state was represented.

The personal views of the editors were shown in the following vote: Affirmative, 391; negative, 97; undecided, 38.

The sentiment of communities was reflected in this vote: Favorable, 297; negative, 156; undecided, 133.

In the Southern States the opposition on the part of the community overwhelming, even though a large majority of the editors actually express themselves in favor of it. Forty-eight out of 76 communities are reported as unfavorably disposed, with only 18 even doubtful and an inconsiderable nine in favor. Yet 40 editors endorse it, 23 oppose it and six admit themselves uncertain. Conservatism is the rule in New England as in the South.

4 BOYS BURIED ALIVE IN CAVE

MUSCATINE, Ia., Oct. 12.—Four boys were buried alive yesterday, when a cave they had excavated in the side of a hill collapsed. They were John Gauthier, 14 years old; Charles Beckey, 13; Harry Davidson, 15; and Glen Thompson, a negro, 12.

The youths' cries brought rescuers, but they were dead before the latter could reach them.

COLLECTS $10 FOR HALF OF EXTRA-LENGTH MUSTACHE

CARTERSVILLE, Mo., Oct. 12.—For the loss of the right side of his mustache, which he had cultivated for nearly 15 years, and which, it is said, was long enough to be wrapped around his ear.

William Mitchell has been compensated by Sherman Smith, in whose saloon the mustache was visited a few days ago.

Mitchell had been in the saloon only a few minutes when a loiterer clipped off half the mustache. Mitchell threatened the arrest of the saloon keeper, but Smith's counsel consulted Mitchell and learned the monetary value at which he held the lost half of his mustache, which was $10; this amount was paid to him and he withdrew the charge.

The loss of one-half of the mustache has not weighed sufficiently with Mitchell to prompt him to accept the loss of the other half, and he still is wearing what has been left to him of the ornament.

Five Years for Paying Teller Perrin. CEDAR RAPIDS, Ia., Oct. 12.—Leo Perrin, former paying teller of the Cedar Rapids National Bank, was sentenced yesterday in the Federal Court to serve five years in the penitentiary at Leavenworth. Perrin robbed the bank of $20,000, approximately $20,000 on Aug. 4 last. Several days he caused the authorities to believe the robbery was the work of bandits.

MAJOR WORRIES DEMOCRATS AT CAPE GIRARDEAU

Talk of Asking Him Not to Mention His Administration at Get-Together Meeting.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
CAPE GIRARDEAU, Mo., Oct. 13.—The principal worry of the Committee on Arrangements for the Southeast Missouri Democratic get-together meeting here tomorrow is what to do with Gov. Major. Members of the committee were discussing this morning the advisability of sending a subcommittee to the Governor with a request that he make no mention of his administration or the administration of any State officers in his speech tomorrow afternoon.

One of the committee said that in his opinion any mention of State affairs by the Governor would detract greatly from the success of the meeting.

The Governor will be visiting a section of the State in which he received very few votes in his campaign for the nomination. This county voted four to one for Cowherd.

No Pictures of the Governor.
At the headquarters of the committee, men were busy getting out huge posters containing pictures of President Wilson, Senators Stone and Reed and Congressman Russell, but nowhere was there a picture of Gov. Major. Even a box of framed pictures received from Chairman McClung of the Democratic State Committee contained no picture of Gov. Major, though there were pictures of Senator Stone and President Wilson. The McClung box did not have a picture of Senator Reed.

One member of the committee, said that the entire committee was of the opinion that only national issues should be discussed.

Former State Senator Thomas P. Lane, a probable candidate for the nomination for Judge of the Court of Appeals, said the convention idea had been widely discussed in this part of the State and that he had found a decided sentiment in favor of it.

Movement for Oliver.
There is a well-defined movement for the nomination for Governor of United States District Attorney Arthur L. Oliver of St. Louis. Oliver's old home was in Caruthersville. He has a wide acquaintance throughout Southeast Missouri and, without doubt, could carry this section of the State against any other candidate.

It is known that Oliver has been considering becoming a candidate. He was talked of for the nomination four years ago, but did not get into the race.

Oliver is here attending Federal Court and will have an active part in the proceedings tomorrow. Senators Stone and Reed, who had been expected here this morning for conferences with Southeast Missouri Democrats, have not arrived but were expected this afternoon.

CONVENTIONS CAMPAIGN TO BECOME ACTIVE NEXT WEEK

Business Men's League Calls Conference of Civic Organizations for Wednesday.

The Business Men's League issued a call today for a meeting at 4 p. m. next Wednesday of the presidents and secretaries of all the commercial, improvement and civic organizations in St. Louis to discuss and consider ways and means of getting one or both of the national conventions for St. Louis next year.

The meeting will be held in the offices of the league. It will be determined at that meeting whether St. Louis will attempt to get both the conventions, or only one, and how much money should be raised as an inducement to bring the conventions to St. Louis.

A committee probably also will be appointed to work on the convention problem and to go to Washington in December to the meeting of the Republican National Committee, and again to Washington in January to the meeting of the Democratic National Committee. From 20 to 25 members of this committee will be appointed.

The league is eager to have every organization in St. Louis identified with the conventions movement.

SEVERED SPINAL CORD SUTURED

PARIS, Oct. 6.—An operation, unparalleled in surgical practice, for the removal of a splinter of shell, embedded the whole width of a man's vertebral canal, and the suturing of the completely severed spinal cord has been successfully performed by Dr. Emil Groux, according to his announcement to the Academy of Medicine.

Dr. Groux said he had undertaken the operation when the man apparently was dying and that had resulted in a manner exceeding his greatest hopes. The patient, Dr. Groux said, was now able to move his legs, his sensory powers were gradually returning and the wound, which ordinarily should have killed the man, was healing. The patient, the doctor added, was now entirely without fever.

Mrs. Trullinger Is Well and Happy

Mrs. J. B. Trullinger of Norborne, Mo., was ill for months with derangements of the digestive tract. She suffered terrible pain and was seldom able to be about.

She took Mayr's Wonderful Remedy with results that most happily surprised her and astonished her physician.

Mrs. Trullinger lives on Rural Route 1, out of Norborne, and leads an active country life. She writes: "I take great pleasure in telling you what Mayr's Wonderful Remedy has done for me. When I wrote you last March I was hardly able to be up at all. I endured awful suffering. I would get so bad I would become unconscious, and the nauseating spells I had would leave me as weak as if I had a long spell of sickness nearly as bad as typhoid. "Words cannot express the appreciation I have for your medicine. I am now able to work all day long. All this summer and fall I have felt just fine, gaining in strength and flesh."

Mayr's Wonderful Remedy gives permanent results for stomach, liver and intestinal ailments. Eat as much and whatever you like. No more distress after eating, pressure of gas in the stomach and around the heart. If Money Really Made the Mare Go, the Phillies Might Win in a Gallop

SCALPERS JOLEED WHEN SUPPORTERS OF PHILLIES QUIT

Speculators Unable to Dispose of Tickets for Fifth Game; Bleacherites Not Out in Overwhelming Numbers.

By Bozeman Bulger.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 13.—It was no howling, crowding, enthusiastic mob that started the march to National League Park today. Along the line there were more ticket speculators than fans, and every sharp was stuck. He was loaded up with unsalable goods.

Evidently the Philly adherents had quit. The reserved seats were sold out excepting those held by the speculators, but the bleacher element is not overwhelming.

The special train from Boston, carrying the Red Sox, Phillies and a swarm of newspaper correspondents and other camp followers, had not reached Philadelphia at 11 o'clock, and the umpires who had come over in advance were plainly worried. At 11 o'clock, long after the special was to have arrived, a telegram was received informing the nervous management that a breakdown had occurred at Belvidere, N. J., and that the baseball train from Boston had been delayed three hours.

Despite their touring troubles en route from Boston, the Red Sox and Phillies, after a light lunch, managed to reach the field shortly before 1 o'clock, and took an extra half hour at throwing and batting, so as to loosen the links from their train-cramped legs.

A surprising development of the early gathering of diamond heroes was that Alex, the great pitcher and the hope of all Philadelphia, had not shown up for practice for 30 minutes after the Phillies had begun taking their regular turn at bat before the temporary arrival.

The absence of Alex was marked by the bleacher crowd, which had arrived early, and proved a source for all kinds of rumors about things that had happened during the night. Instead of Alexander, Eskin May took the regular turn at bat.

Speculators, in a desperate effort to unload seats for today's game at noon offered them at 50 cents over the regular price.

It was evident that many seats in the grand stand would be vacant. Philadelphiaans positively refused to take the field shortly after 1 o'clock and, one sure way of beating the sharks, Alexander, Eskin May took the regular turn at bat.

Immediately the Philly supporters wanted to bet even money that the National League champions would win.

As the Phillies began to maul the ball about in practice the batters looked on with interest. The field fence, wishing that it had been in Boston, to show that the right field wall was not a mere fiction.

Cravath and Cravath both cracked drives against the right field fence, and the cheering and laughing went on until the fence was nearly broken.

Just before the game, the Philadelphiaans were told that the Red Sox had four home runs.

Among the Philadelphiaans, the news was a source of great interest. The Philadelphiaans were told that the Red Sox had four home runs.

DEEDS OF GEORGE HUEY FIRST CHANCE AT 3-CUSHION TILE

Huey, New Billiard Leader, Will Risk His Laurels Against Veteran Ceust.

"Fighting Bill" Huey of Chicago surprised the wisecracks of the billiard world last week when in his match with George Moore at New York he won the world's three-cushion championship.

Moore had led Huey, 8 to 4, at the end of the first night's play, even the Chicago expert's closest friends gave up hope, but true to his name, "Fighting Bill," Huey went after Moore hammer and tongs on the second night's play, and not only made up his lost ground, but actually gained 10 points more on the cushion.

Moore worked like a demon on the cushion, and followed this with a display of brilliant play, putting 10 points in the last 15 minutes, putting the little champion utterly to rout.

Yesterday's receipts failed to reach the Braves' park capacity, so that the figures fall slightly short of the possible. Each member of the winning team will get $27.75 and the loser $25.15.

The Real Hero of the Big Series

St. Paul Bantamweight "Champ" Outfights Jimmy Pappas in Great Bout.

JOHNNY ERTLE of St. Paul, Minn., vs. Jimmy Pappas of Atlanta, Ga. 5 rounds, 115 pounds. At 2 p. m. (both underweight)—Ertle the winner on points.

JIMMY MURPHY vs. Harry Kabakoff, 8 rounds, at 115 pounds. Richardson of St. Louis, 8 rounds, at 115 pounds. Richardson the winner on points.

JIMMY CURTIS of New York City vs. "Kid" Williams of St. Louis, 6 rounds, at 110 pounds. Curtis the winner; Howard disqualified in the third round for fouling.

Johnny Ertle of St. Paul, Minn., last night gave a demonstration at the Coliseum that convinced many of those present that "Kid" Williams, "champion bantamweight boxer of the world," really did have a very unpleasant time of it in St. Paul.

That has been Ertle's claim, and he came here last night to demonstrate his right to title and possession of the championship.

SPORT SALAD

And There You Are. No, Prunella. Philadelphia. Doesn't seem to have a chance. And the cause. My dear Prunella. Is apparent. At a glance.

It has been. Your observation. That one run. Will never do. They're arranged. Dearie, will insist. On making two.

Two is not. So much, Prunella. Is said and done. A total. Has been figured. It is twice. As much as one.

Something seems. To tell me, dearie. That the Phils. Would surely win. If when they have. Men on bases. They're arranged. To drive 'em in.

We're not posing. Dear Prunella. As the smartest. Guy on earth. This is merely. The way it is. And it goes. For what it's worth.

What's the Odds? LEXANDER says the Phils are not licked yet—not by a long shot. No, Alex, you are not licked by a long shot, but it looks like a 2-to-1 shot has got your goat.

And now we have it by wireless phone from Frisco that "Dutch" Leonard gave up a "musical" offer to become a pitcher. Before taking up baseball as a professional, Dutch was a trap drummer. We were wondering where he developed that temperamental displayed when making two out of his kicked so violently over the traces.

"Dutch" just simply has to be beating something. If it isn't a base drum it's some old baseball club.

The winners' share will be $775.38 per man. It would undoubtedly have been at least $400 if it hadn't been for that short right-field wall in Philadelphia.

Two of Cravath's long flies would have been home runs on the Philadelphia grounds. Owing to a bit of hard luck, they happened to be in the Boston grounds, thereby depriving "Cactus" of two perfectly good home runs.

Looks like the Phillies are being "two-one" to death. At any rate, they can't finish any worse than one-two.

The Philadelphia fans are still hopeful. Go to it, old kids, we know just how you feel.

At the conclusion of the series both teams will go to the coast, cleaning up the money. The Phillies' share will be $775.38 per man. It would undoubtedly have been at least $400 if it hadn't been for that short right-field wall in Philadelphia.

KENNEY MAY GET ANOTHER CHANCE AT EDDIE LIMBERG

Prospects Bright That Principals in Finals of Current City Golf Meet Will Be Same as in 1914.

HARRY POTTER BEATEN

Country Club Star, Finalist in State Tournament, Yields to Kenney, 4 Up and 3.

The longer one studies the results of yesterday's play in the city golf tournament at Normandy, the more impressed he becomes with the probability that the finals match Saturday, may be identical with the title test at Glen Echo, one year ago.

The fact of the matter is that very few, except about six other golf players, would have been surprised if Harry Potter and Eddie Limberg had been arranged. But that was last year.

Chris Kenney, the redoubtable Chris, is in the upper division of the title fight, while City Champion Limberg is in the other, which removes any possibility of a clash meeting before the finals.

Kenney must meet D. B. Husey and Art Stuckey or Sterling Edmunds before he can enter the finals, while the title holder must play Dr. Faine and T. B. Boyd or Stuart Stuckey before he qualifies as a finalist.

Kenney Defeats Potter. But just take a peek at yesterday's scores. Chris Kenney defeated Harry Potter, 4 up and 3. A most decisive score. Kenney played splendid golf yesterday. His putting was better than usual, while his driving in this tourney has surpassed that of his former play.

Eddie Limberg won from veteran Jesse Carleton, 2 up and 1. Carleton in his two previous rounds of 83 or two below par, showed a record of which shows he has played good golf.

Stuart Stuckey easily won over R. E. Lore, 5 and 3, defeating his opponent with less trouble than had been anticipated. Clarkson Potter defeated his man by using Jimmie Pappas, who shot right-field wall in Philadelphia.

In today's play, a local star seems to have drawn a player of lesser calibre. Arthur Stuckey and Sterling Edmunds should be the hardest fought one of the day.

Results in championship class:
D. B. Husey won by default from E. M. Gould.
Chris Kenney defeated Harry Potter, 4 up and 3.
W. A. Stuckey defeated A. F. Mendel, 2 up and 1.
Sterling Edmunds won by default from Clarkson Potter.

Clarkson Potter defeated Jesse L. Carleton, 2 up and 1.
Dr. G. F. Faine defeated C. C. Pangman, 2 up and 1.
T. B. Boyd defeated G. G. Boardman, 2 up and 1.
E. Lore defeated R. E. Lore, 5 up and 4.

NOBODY CAN TELL IF YOU DARKEN YOUR GRAY, FADED HAIR WITH SAGE TEA

Druggist Says that Sage Tea when Mixed with Sulphur Prevents Dandruff and Stops Falling Hair.

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea with sulphur and alcohol added then left to age and carefully filtered will turn gray streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant; remove every bit of dandruff, stop scalp itching, and falling hair.

Just a few applications will prove a revelation if your hair is fading, gray or dry, scraggly and thin. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use tonic, costing about 50 cents a large bottle at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," thus avoiding a lot of fuss. Some druggists make their own, but it isn't nearly so nice as Wyeth's.

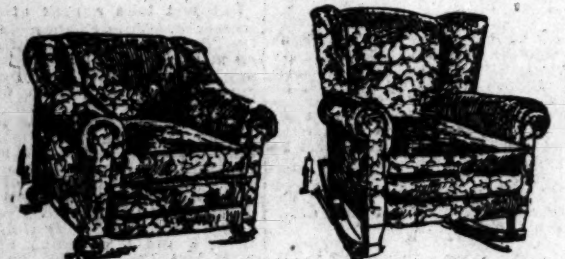

While wispy, gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur no one can tell, because it does it so naturally; so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. Do this tonight and by morning all gray hairs have disappeared, after another application or two it will be restored to its natural color and be even more glossy, soft and luxuriant than ever.

Local druggists say they are selling lots of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur," it surely helps folks appear years younger.—ADY.

HADLEY WANTS TO BE A SENATOR, NOT GOVERNOR AGAIN

Declines in Letter to St. Louis Friend to Be Candidate for State Executive.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 13.—The following letter was sent today by Herbert S. Hadley to John C. Curran of St. Louis:

"I received on yesterday your telegram and today your letter conveying to me the desire of a number of my Republican friends in St. Louis that I should again become a candidate for Governor.

"I appreciate very much, indeed, this expression of your confidence and good will, and I fully recognize the necessity of an improvement in the conditions existing in the public affairs of the State.

"I do not, however, think that it will be either necessary or advisable that I should be a candidate again for the office of Governor, in view of the fact that there is a number of active and receptive candidates for this nomination, including such men as Cleveland A. Newton of St. Louis, Mayor Hugh McInnes of Joplin, Mayor C. W. Thomas of Jefferson City, E. E. E. McJimsey of Springfield, C. D. Morris of St. Joseph, John E. Swanger and Judge Lamm of Sedalia, any one of whom would creditably represent the party and would unquestionably give the people a satisfactory and much improved administration of our State affairs.

"It has been my desire to become a candidate for United States Senator, if I should find that I could thereby best promote the hope of party success in the coming campaign, and I am confident that the party can find a satisfactory and successful candidate for Governor among those who have been suggested for this nomination.

"I want you and those whom you represent to know, however, that I appreciate, very much indeed, this expression of your confidence and good will.

"Very truly yours,

"HERBERT S. HADLEY."

BISHOP CALLED "PUPPET OF RICH" BY ONE OF RECTORS

The Rev. George Chalmers Richmond on Trial for His Denunciations of Bishop Rhineland.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 13.—Denunciations of the Rev. Philip M. Rhineland, Bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Diocese of Pennsylvania, were disclosed at the opening of the ecclesiastical trial of Rev. George Chalmers Richmond, rector of St. John's Episcopal Church.

Louis B. Runk, the church advocate, read letters in which Richmond told the Bishop he was partial to "imperialistic, autocratic and aristocratic ideas and ideals."

"Bishops, priests and pastors who are Rome or act like English ecclesiastical snobs, dukes and dandies have no place within our ranks," Richmond wrote to his Bishop. "You, sir, are afraid to act in any way, morally or spiritually, superior to the canons, because you owe your position to a corporation lawyer, the capitalists who control the Episcopal Church in Philadelphia."

Richmond also accused the Bishop of being "a conservative and on the side of plutocracy. That's why you were elected Bishop of Pennsylvania. The Holy Ghost had very little to do with your election," he wrote.

Further charges are that Richmond preached a sermon in St. John's Sunday, Nov. 2, 1914, in which he likened the Bishop to a pharisee, saying: "He was elected by the wealth of the diocese, but his name were up today he would not receive 25 votes." He also accused the Bishop of "living in a palace" and "riding about in a limousine."

Other references to the Bishop, some in letters to him, are "puppet of the rich," "creature of plutocracy" and "ecclesiastical standpatter."

WOMAN FOILS CONFIDENCE MAN

Patrolman's Wife Telephone Police

When Told Husband Was Hurt.

Mrs. Cecelia Meyers, 2315 Sidney street, wife of Patrolman Harry Meyers, became suspicious when a man drove up to her home in an automobile yesterday afternoon and told her that her husband was at the city hospital with injuries resulting from an accident and had sent him for money to hire an ambulance.

She asked him to wait a minute and then went to a telephone and called up Central Police Station. She was informed that her husband had not been hurt and was requested to detain the visitor, but he fled when he heard her at the telephone.

BARTHOLOMEW'S BLACK CAT GONE

Police Asked to Look for Former Governor Stephens' Terrorist.

A former Governor, a former Congressman and an actor asked the police last night to look for lost pets. Former Gov. Lon V. Stephens, residing at 5336 Cabanne avenue, reported that a brindle terrier, answering the name of Muggins, strayed away from his home. Former Congressman Richard Bartholomew of 406 Florida boulevard reported the loss of a black tomcat, and Mitchell Harris, leading man of the Players, 514 Hamilton avenue, lost his Boston terrier.

Good Health in Old Age Brings Much Happiness

Simple Remedy Promotes Health by Overcoming Tendency to Constipation.

Advancing years impair the action of the vital organs. Old age should be the period of greatest happiness but good health is necessary. Constipation should not be tolerated—it is often the direct cause of ill health. Headache, belching, biliousness, bloated, drowsiness after eating, and other symptoms of constipation can be readily relieved by the use of a simple laxative compound sold in drug stores under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Mr. J. H. Bristol, 1412 Geddes Av., Ann Arbor, Mich., who is 83 years old, says "Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is the best remedy I ever used for constipation and I always have a bottle of it in the house to use when I feel the need of it; it never disappoints."

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a mild laxative preparation, positive in its effect, acting easily and naturally without griping or other pain or distress. For over a quarter of a century it has been the standard household remedy in thousands of homes. Druggists everywhere sell it for fifty cents a bottle. A trial bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin can be obtained free of charge, by writing to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 454 Washington St., Monticello, Illinois.

RUSSIAN BARITONE A FINE ESCAMILLO TO GAY'S CARMEN

Spanish Prima Donna, Baklanoff and Martin Give Splendid Performance.

PAVLOWA IN LAST SCENE

The Love of Three Kings, by Montemezzi, Closing Bill at Odeon Tonight.

By CARLOS F. HURD.
ST. LOUIS, Russia and the United States formed an irrefragable triple alliance at the Odeon last night. Maria Gay has found an Escamillo and a Don Jose worthy of her Carmen, and a splendid production of Bizet's great opera centered about the Spanish prima donna, George Baklanoff and Ricardo (formerly Richard) Martin.

Mrs. Gay—no, let's say Senora Gay—appeared as Carmen at the Olympia Theater in January, 1910. Although the production was by the Boston Grand Opera Company, the accessories were in no way equal to those of last night and the principal accessory then lacking was adequate male support. Even Senora Gay's ample shoulders were not broad enough to carry the whole production, and the net result, according to my rather biased recollection, was more like oratorio than opera.

But last night, with a sturdy Kentucky tenor as her soldier sweetheart, and a towering Russian baritone as her tormentor, Senora Gay had her delayed chance before a St. Louis audience, and she acted and sang her role in a way that set old playgoers to discussing the question, whether even Calve was a greater Carmen than this one. "Acted and sang" is the proper sequence. Her acting was foremost and her fine singing was second, in effectiveness; and the same was true of Baklanoff, who was superbly satisfying as an actor and as a singer, in the part of Escamillo. Martin's voice is his chief asset, but his acting as Don Jose was for the most part adequate, though he suffered by comparison with Senora Gay, in some of the very exacting scenes which they shared.

Maria Gay's Vivid Realism.
Maria Gay's Carmen is a body of passion, without a trace of spirituality. She is new, languid, now eager, always voluptuous, always selfish and deliberate in her love, fierce and reckless in her hate. Her restless hands are no less eloquent than her voice, and her form is always close to the nearest attractive man.

In the most calculating fashion, with all the arts of the trained snarer—the nod, the smile, the wink, the stare, the low whistle—she placed her spell on weak and susceptible Don Jose. Not so much to arouse his jealousy, as for the mere love of conquest, she flirted with every man she saw. Her gypsy cap was set for the tall and self-poised Escamillo from the moment of his appearance, and her demeanor toward Don Jose in the latter scenes burned with the caustic of utter disdain.

Nature gave George Baklanoff a breadth and stature which might well fill the greedy eye of a Carmen, and which was hardly less gratifying to the eyes of the audience. He was seen here, in the Boston Opera engagement of 1910, as Higoletto, and as Amosaro in "Aida."

Baklanoff's Fine Poise.
His bearing toward Carmen showed no trace of infatuation. He viewed the dusky singara as a prize which he might have for the taking, and he readily decided that she was worth while. Having so decided, it was as small a matter to him to risk death by the knife of the love-crazed Don Jose, as it was to make the daily hazard of the bull's horns in the arena.

Baklanoff's baritone voice has the sonorous quality, which has made the voices of the Russians, in the lower register, world-famous. Such a singer is not tempted to bellow in the torador zone, and this household favorite was sung in a fashion which brought lusty attempts at an encore.

Martin's acting improved as the play advanced. His voice was splendidly responsive to the emotional character of his role, and he, rather than his gypsy enchanter, seemed to be the one drawn on by the fate which she invoked in the cards.

May Schneider, as Michaela, sang in a pure, light soprano. As a contrast to the swarthy Carmen, she was well cast. One would like, some time, to see an unmistakable ingenue take this part; but grand opera organizations do not abound in ingenues.

Pavlova's Late Appearance.
It is proper to mention these four principals before alluding to the very effective work done by Mile. Pavlova and her Russian dancers, in the closing scene. The success or failure of the opera had been determined before Pavlova appeared, and if the singers had done their work poorly, she could not have saved the production.

There were brief dances in the earlier acts, and Senora Gay, with the castanets, did a vivid bit of dancing. But the audience did not get its attention thoroughly on the subject of dancing until Pavlova, in a Sevillian senorita's gown, flashed into the scene set outside the bullring. The twinkling rapidity of movement, without which Pavlova would not be Pavlova, was beyond the requirements of the Spanish dance, but the grace of the ballerina and of the caballeron and senoritas who danced with her, was most pleasing.

As in Monday night's production, the scenic setting was admirable. The great Moorish Giralda tower put the stamp of Seville on the first act; and the "sea" of the second act was no humble way-side affair, but a charming resort. The soldiers, too, wore their uniforms and marched in a way which was well up to the standard of these warlike times.

Tonight's closing bill, following today's matinee, will be Italo Montemezzi's tragic opera, "The Love of Three Kings," with Luisa Villant in the role of Fiorenza, which she created at La Scala, Milan, and with George Baklanoff and Jose Mardones in the chief masculine roles.

DR. HARPER, DEMOCRAT, ELECTED PRESIDENT OF SCHOOL BOARD

Arrangement Made by which German Savings Institutions Will Supply Schools With $500,000.

Dr. J. P. Harper, a Democrat, was elected president of the Board of Education at the monthly meeting last night. He succeeds Herman Mauch. Ben Stromberg was elected to succeed Dr. Harper as vice president. There were no contests for the offices.

To avoid a threatened deficit in school funds, as a result of the provision of the new city charter, which has resulted in delaying the payment of taxes until the last day of the year, the board members signed a contract with the German Savings Institution which agrees to honor all checks issued by the board between Oct. 15 and Dec. 31 of this year, up to a total of $500,000. The Savings Institution will hold these checks until Jan. 3, 1916, at which time the board guarantees to take them up and pay interest at the rate of 5 per cent per annum, from Dec. 1 until the checks are taken up. The board, under its rules, is not permitted to borrow money.

The board ordered a protest sent to Director of Public Utilities Hooke against the granting of a permit to a private corporation to lay a switch track across property abutting the site selected for a school at Taylor and Duncan avenues. Secretary Mason of the board said if the permit were granted the school site, which is the only available one in the district, would have to be abandoned.

Pockets Picked on Street Cars.
The pockets of three persons were picked when they were on street cars, last night; the thefts aggregating $2.15. Nelson Manse of 5747 Julian avenue was robbed on a Vandeventer car of a purse containing $30. Alfred H. Benjamin of 5941 Garfield avenue lost $1.15 on a Vandeventer car and Charles Plank of 4215 Bates street lost $1 on a McKinley car.

United States Milk Inspector Gives Pevely Dairy Highest of Scores Possible

The Score Was 98.45 Per Cent

U. S. GIVES PEVELY DAIRY HIGHEST OF SCORES POSSIBLE

Federal Milk Inspector Grades It at 98.45, While Missouri Food Commissioner Marks It 99.15—Doctors Demand Its Milk.

A virtually perfect score, 98.45 per cent, was given the dairy of the Pevely Farm at Pevely, Mo., in a recent test made by Inspector L. R. Cook, milk specialist of the dairy division of the United States Bureau of Animal Industry.

Fredrick H. Fricke, Commissioner of the Missouri Food and Drug Department, who also made a test at the Pevely Farm, scored the dairy 99.15 per cent higher, or 99.15 per cent. Mr. Fricke said the dairy scored the highest of the 500 or more he had visited since he had been in office, and that it was as nearly perfect as it was possible for a dairy to be under natural and normal conditions.

ALL MILK CERTIFIED
The scoring of the Pevely Dairy was made by the card which has been endorsed by the Official Dairy Inspectors' Association. The methods used at the dairy inspected scored 40 per cent, while the equipment of the dairy is rated at 40 per cent.

Account is taken of the health and cleanliness of the cows, the situation, construction and sanitary condition of the stables in which they are milked, the cleanliness of the utensils and milking machines, and the temperature of the milk after milking.

All of the milk sold from the Pevely Farm is certified, and is so free from germs, bacilli and other sources of infection that it is used by physicians mostly for babies and invalids.

SHRATS OMAHA TEST
As an example of the very high grade of the Pevely Farm Dairy, it was said at Inspector Cook's office that the milk from most of the dairies at Omaha, Neb., where a test recently was made by the Federal authorities scored only between 70 per cent and 80 per cent. This, according to Mr. Cook, was exceptionally high as compared with most dairies in the United States.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

AMERICANS ALL

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Speaking of nationalities and neutrality league is getting to be quite irksome. Why not let us, as Americans, cut out such talk? Do we not recognize all allegiance to our country? Do we not when we take the solemn oath of allegiance to the Stars and Stripes and become fully naturalized American citizens?

I guarantee there is not a German in this country who came here a millionaire first to make it his home. They have to admit that conditions are far superior in this country than any other. I, myself, am perfectly satisfied here. I was born just outside of London and was two years and nine months fighting for England in South Africa and yet I am not always happy about my country. Why? Simply because I am an American citizen and proud of it. No, I am not English-American, I am just plain old United States American citizen.

Let's forget about where we came from. We are here in good old U. S. A. and glad of it! Let 'em fight their own troubles over in Europe and when they come over here to buy material or borrow money, and are able to pay the price, why, I for one say, "let 'em have it." We need the money.

AMERICAN CITIZEN.

Getting to the Art Museum.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

In order to remove any opposition to a car line in the park leading to the Art Museum why not introduce the underground trolley? This would obviate the unsightly overhead wires and also prevent the electric current from injuring the trees—New York, Philadelphia and Washington have this system, why not St. Louis?

CITIZEN.

Public Service Appreciated.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

At a meeting of the Western Oil Jobbers' Association held in Chicago on Saturday, Oct. 3, 1915, the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

"Resolved by the Western Oil Jobbers' Association that they have noted with interest and deep appreciation the stand taken by your paper in the present attempt of the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana and their so-called allied independent interests, to exterminate by unfair and trust methods the independent oil interests."

"We know that the independent interests are the public interests and in bringing the matter to the attention of the public, you have rendered a public service."

In these days it is a pleasure to know that some of our foremost newspapers still stand for the principles on which this Government is based, and are willing fearlessly to assail in the cause of justice and right, the greatest and most heartless trust in the world.

A copy of this resolution will be sent to all members of this association and the secretary shall draft a copy and send same to the editor of the Post-Dispatch."

In line with the above resolution it gives me great pleasure to comply with the wishes of this association.

WESTERN JOBBERS' ASSOCIATION,
W. HUGH STARK, Secretary.

Preserve the Art Museum.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

The writer of the letter signed, "Virile," advocating the destruction of our Art Museum is evidently a practical-minded person who has not considered the advertising value of an Art Gallery.

Probably the best advertised spots on earth are the Louvre and Luxembourg in Paris, gauged by the number and variety of their visitors during the past hundred years and by the tens of thousands of pages written about them in books, magazines and newspapers in all languages. This advertising value is true relatively of all municipal art galleries in Europe and America, and ours is the fourth in distinction in America. Such a gallery is also the center of interest to hundreds of living artists who contribute to its walls in a continuous stream through the years and who advertise the fact in their respective cities; for example, see the present exhibition of American artists occupying six rooms in our Art Museum. Such a gallery collects works which increase in value steadily, for example, see the picture in our gallery that cost the donor $1000 and is now worth $25,000.

"Art is long, life is short." Art treasures increase in value, animals perish.

I can imagine the answer of the citizens of Paris, Berlin, London, New York or Chicago to the proposition that their art treasures be dispersed and the building be used to house fish and animals.

Good to laugh. Will St. Louis be the object of such a deed?

A BUSINESS MAN.

AMERICA FIRST.

President Wilson in his address to the Daughters of the Revolution wisely has raised the issue of America first. The issue existed before he touched it. It was created by groups of foreign born citizens who tried to mold public opinion and direct governmental action in harmony with alien ends and interests.

That the President has confidence in the loyalty of the great mass of citizens of recent foreign origin is proven by his challenge. He believes the balance of opinion among them is on the side of America. He said:

I am in a hurry for an opportunity to have a lineup and let the men who are thinking first of other countries stand on one side and all those that are for America first, last and all the time stand on the other side.

We believe the President is right. Knowing something of the mind of great numbers of citizens of foreign origin, having lived among them and worked with them, we are sure that a great balance of their opinion is intensely loyal to America. American institutions, principles and interests. However strongly they may sympathize with their former compatriots in the desperate European struggle, their hearts are true to their own country. Nevertheless, many have been misled by fanatic and foolish leaders, who have played upon sympathy to confuse and misdirect their thought and action.

It is necessary to clarify American thought and fuse the sentiment of all Americans of any and all origins into accord on all questions wherein American interests and institutions are affected by our own action towards outside nations or their action towards us.

American citizens have stronger incentives to stand by their country than the citizens of most other countries. Not only does the country hold their homes and material interests, but it embodies and symbolizes great spiritual interests. The country belongs to them. They own and control its destinies. It is what they make it. Americanism stands for justice and liberty. It rejects class and caste and privilege. All Americans are sovereign and equal under the law.

America represents democracy—the right and power of the people to govern themselves—with all that democracy means, not only to the people who actually live under it and enjoy its blessings, but to all mankind to whom our free institutions are a refuge and an inspiration. American citizens who betray the vital interests of their country endanger not only their freedom and welfare, but those principles upon which the welfare of mankind depends.

If this Kiel-Rogers debate keeps on, someone will be so impolite as to tell the principals to engage an auditorium.

AUDITOR GORDON'S EXPENSES.

There doesn't seem to be any law for Auditor Gordon's charging the expense of his convention trip to Salt Lake City and return. It was just custom. But the custom seems to have been discontinued for the terms of two previous State Auditors.

How about Auditor Gordon's son's expenses? There seems to be neither law nor custom for that charge. Is it not enough for the taxpayers of the State to pay salaries to sons, daughters, wives, mothers-in-law, daughters-in-law, sons-in-law, uncles, aunts and cousins of officials, without paying their traveling expenses? We might consent to pay them one way—away from the State.

There doesn't seem to be any limit to the expense account. Items of $28 for train meals for two days and over $16 a day for hotel bills indicate that the Auditor was "going some" at the State's expense.

The Liberty Bell missed a lot by being away from Philadelphia last week.

BLIND CANARIES, MURDERED PROFESSORS.

The German Governor-General of Belgium has decreed that the practice of putting out the eyes of song birds to stimulate their vocalism must cease.

The penalties for violation of the decree are not given. Doubtless they are savagely severe.

Protection for song birds in pillaged Belgium, where massacred women and children and hostages who forfeited their lives through no fault of their own, have afforded great feast for buzzards, will make neutral gasp.

But Americans should not be too ready to find the inconsistency in protected canaries and unprotected humanity in this particular part of the war zone.

The trustees of Pennsylvania University unanimously adopted resolutions Monday declaring for free speech. "Freedom of academic opinions, speech, teachings and public discussions by members of the university faculty must never be infringed," they said.

But they justified the peremptory dismissal of Dr. Scott Nearing as a penalty for exercising the right of free speech.

It was said last August that we owed Europe six billions. The $600,000,000 United States investment in Europe is not so big, after all.

NEVER THE SAME AGAIN!

We breathe a sigh for days gone by in Calhoun County, Ill. She held out quite a spell, but she is doomed to have a railroad at last.

Her prayer was that things forever would be as they are now, and ever have been. She has 256 square miles of virgin soil, covered by 256 square miles of unpolluted ether, and 8000 pure souls who have never breathed coal smoke or eaten cinders. Her cows meandered at will with no thought of culverts and railroad lawyers. There was no danger that her daughters would elope with brakemen. Nobody had to stop, look and listen. Her boys could go swimmin' without fear of being seen from a train. All her folks sleep 'nights, and no piercing shriek awoke the graveyards.

Now there will be strangers and strange noises and strange breeds of dogs and railroad pie, and the conductor's wife will be stuck up, and the Justice of the Peace will be corrupted with a pass, and the candidates for the Legislature will froth at the mouth and cuss the railroad on the stump, and there will be a heap of lawsuits, and immigrants and flies and pool tables and styles and an opera house, and Calhoun County will be degaumed and all smelled up, and the next thing you know some two-gallus fellow will come along and start up a newspaper—and that is what they call civilization!

PRECAUTIONS AGAINST DIPHTHERIA.

The possibility that diphtheria may be more prevalent than usual during the coming winter, suggests that the city and the people should do all that is indicated by modern knowledge towards reducing its ill effects to the minimum.

On the part of the city, the necessary amount of antitoxin should be obtained and kept in readiness. The Commissioner of Health for Chicago reported that in the eight years before the antitoxin treatment was general, the annual mortality from diphtheria in that city was 12.46 per 10,000 of population; in the eight years following it was only 4.55 per 100,000 of population. And, as diphtheria is classed among the fifth diseases, pains should be taken to keep the city clean. Extra precautions should be taken in schools and public buildings.

Individuals, especially those responsible for the welfare of children, should be on guard against infection. The disease is spread by taking into the throat or mouth the germ scattered by infected persons in sneezing, coughing, or by contact with such persons. This suggests the prompt isolation of patients, as soon as the disease makes its appearance. Parents should keep in touch with physicians and follow their directions to the letter.

With watchfulness and proper care, the sickness may be kept within bounds and where it occurs its worst effects may be avoided. The great lesson for the community is the need of rushing the isolation hospital to completion.

It may be inferred that the packers, having pledged themselves to the flag, will make mince-meat of invaders.

PRIVATE TELEPHONES FOR LOVERS.

Hello, Cupid! Connect us with Paradise! Have you read the news that President Wilson and his betrothed have a private telephone? "He can phone her directly without sending the call through central."

This is a convenient addition to the old wireless system of signals and thought-waves and secret codes for the transmission of thrills and flashes of joy and throbs of sympathy and important love messages, which have been in use before now.

But the telephone, however private, will never be anything like a satisfactory medium of exchange between lovers until you can see through it. Even then something will have to be taken for granted. The great trouble about a telephone is the confounded length of the wire! Cutting out central is a move in the right direction, but all true lovers live in the hope of a really perfect invention that will eliminate not only the intervening wire but the awkward transmitters.

With suffragists proclaiming that no home is complete without a man, the male of the species is vindicated.

THE SUBTRACTOR IN COURT.

State Auditor Gordon is said to be acting as his own lawyer in opposing the mandamus asked for against him in the school fund case. Deserted by the others who were coadjutors in advocating an intensely unpopular cause and accessories in the offense, he represents to the Supreme Justices that he had no intent to withhold the money from the schools. He is actuated only by a stern sense of official duty and a desire to ascertain from an authoritative source just what the law is.

No law compelled the Great Subtractor to make a $514,503 "touch" on the educational money. He would have been pretty free from jeopardy in making the apportionment just as it had been made for 25 years—just as he himself had made it in six prior years. The precise moment when Mr. Gordon began to have tender scruples about the intent of the law should be noted.

It was not until a shortage appeared in the treasury balance and the school fund, slightly larger than usual, offered a tempting cash reserve on which to draw for the salaries of the relatives in office.

Perhaps it was on account of its name—"Grape-juice"—that Dr. Barthold's cat wandered away from the doctor's home; it was seeking more congenial quarters.

"AT THE BAPTIST CHURCH SHEDS."

Incidental to another thesis, the Literary Digest managed to set before us a sketch of the Higher Baseball:

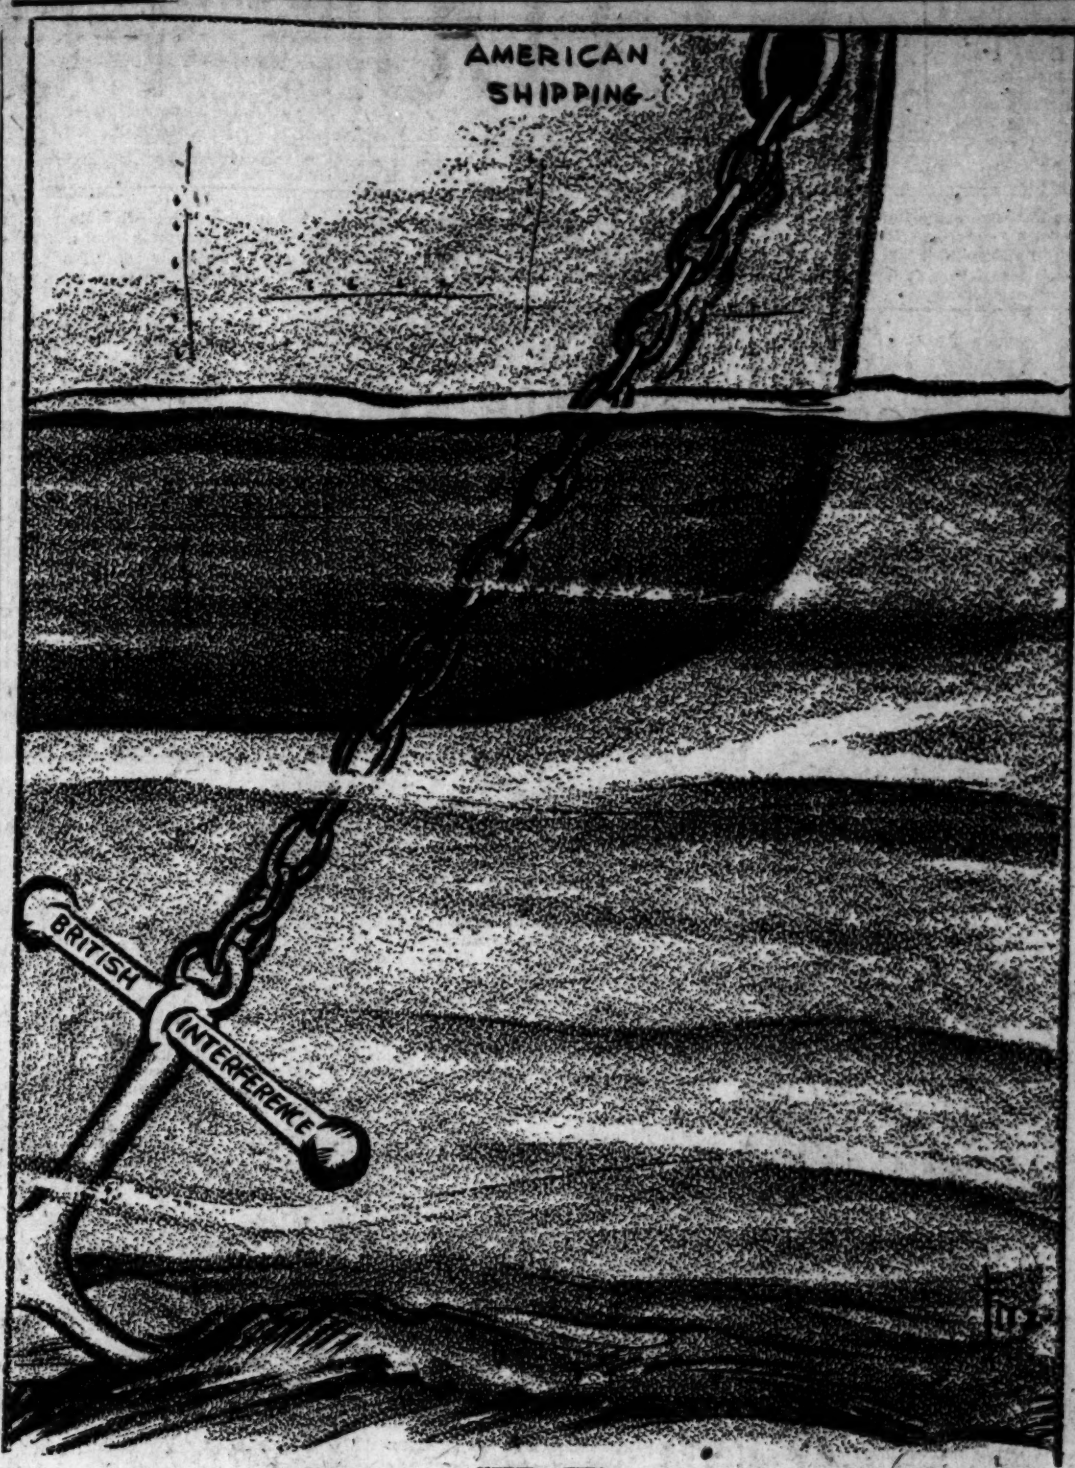

You are playing three-old-cat, or perhaps there are enough boys to choose sides for a real game of the Baptist church sheds. Somebody has a shiny new bat.

You pick it up in your turn and you step to the home plate and the owner anxiously adjures you to "hold the Spalding" or he even takes it out of your hand to show you that if the trademark is on the top, the bat will meet the ball the "straight way" of the grain, and will not be shattered when you smite one of "Skinny's" fast ones for a three-bagger.

It was thus very likely that you first heard of A. G. Spalding who, as the St. Louis Post-Dispatch remarks, "as a famous pitcher, a manager, a magnate, a maker and vendor of the requisites of the game and publisher of the standard authority on baseball, made his name as well-known as that of presidents and better known than that of the most popular other leaders."

And at the news of his death many a newspaper editor or sport writer "holds Spalding up" as the father of baseball, a great player of the older day and a mighty influence in the development of baseball as a clean sport. There at the horse sheds back of the village church the game is seen at its best, its merits are most transcendent, its teachings on the lesson of worldly content moderated by principle—fair play and easy losing—have their most spiritual quality. There victory is its own pure, satisfying reward, untainted by gate money and hopes centered on next season's salary list.

These post season games that draw thousands to ball parks and bring crowds around bulletin boards and push the world war off the front page—what are they, after all, but sordid gladiatorial combats?

THE NEWS FROM HOGWALLOW.

A TRAVELING man that appeared in this vicinity last week and tried to sell the Rye Straw Store a bill of goods, met with poor success, as the proprietor was asleep on the counter at the time.

The Dog Hill preacher will start a protracted meeting in a few days for the benefit of Wash Hocks, who fell from grace this week while trying to drive a calf out of a corn patch.

Sile Kidew, who has been absent for some time, has returned home and says Hogwallow is good enough for him, and that he expects to die here. Funeral arrangements have not been made.

A man went up in a balloon at Tickville last Saturday before a large audience. He wanted to take up a collection before going up, instead of after coming down, but the crowd thought they would wait, as he might get killed.

Oricket Hicks is making a scrap book out of the patent medicine advertisements clipped from the Tickville Tidings.

Sidney Hocks, who has been chaperoning a wheat thresher around over this part of the country this summer, has returned home. He has not yet decided what he will do with his money.

Jefferson Potlocks, one of our most highly esteemed citizens, had a lively encounter with Dock Hocks, Friday morning, when he went to the blacksmith shop to have a tooth pulled. Dock officiated in his usual roughshod manner, being a blacksmith by occupation and a dentist by persuasion. Jefferson was seated comfortably in the barber chair, which Dock also uses to good effect on Saturday, and told to look pleasant as the ordeal he was about to go through was guaranteed not to be any more painful than that of getting a haircut. Jefferson was told to think of something pleasant and smile with his mouth open, so that Dock could look into it with the aid of a spy-glass and a lantern. When Dock got out his pliers and was about to lay hold of the offending tooth,

The cordilleras flaming crest

But realising how they felt columbus talked like roosevelt at last they came in site of land

Jefferson became unruly, and finally the Deputy Constable was called with a hope of quieting Jeff. This had no effect, and a general struggle ensued, lasting for several minutes. During the excitement accompanying the tussle there arose in Dock's mind a doubt as to which tooth it was that needed pulling, and to make certain of getting the right one, Dock had to pull all of them on the west side of Jeff's mouth. Pulling them one at a time he would show them to Jefferson, and ask him if that was the right one, and at last the right one was brought forth. Dock never does things by halves.—Hogwallow Kentuckian.

HEALTHY HINTS.

J. A. G.—Quarry is indefinite.
J. L. B.—For itching toes, which scratching makes sore, and on which blisters sometimes form, apply a little powdered boracic acid in shoes freely each morning. Keep feet dry and clean. (Some apply with talcum powder.)

W. R. O.—One writer says: The skin of a boiled egg is the most efficacious remedy that can be applied to a boil. Peel it carefully, and apply to the part affected. It will draw off the matter and relieve the soreness in a few hours. Another says: Get a wide-mouthed pickle bottle (quart size), fill with boiling water, let stand a minute, then empty quickly and press the rim firmly over the boil. The suction will remove all pain and soreness, and repeated treatment will reduce the swelling and effect a speedy cure. A French physician has had great success with scattering boils by applying at the first sign of inflammation compresses of equal parts of tincture of arnica, tincture of iodine and spirits of camphor. Continue until the trouble seems to be passed. If with the compresses one drinks sulphur water, or eat clover blossom tea it will help to scatter the boils and overcome the tendency. The old idea that boils come from "bad blood" is upheld by Dr. Tweed of Summit, N. J. He writes that four years ago he treated a case of recurring boils by all modern methods with little or no effect. In despair, he prescribed plain powdered sulphur, a heaping teaspoonful three times a day after meals, which, to his astonishment, the boils shrank up and disappeared forever. Love Eternal

A man must do more than woo and wed the right girl, or a girl, the right man. The right girl must seek the right girl, and the right girl, the right man—then undying love will follow.

By Mildred C. Goodridge.

It was a cruel act, that of cross-grained, prejudiced old John Marsh, when he parted his daughter and Eustace Lee. They had grown up as boy and girl. They had kissed each other for the first time under two spreading elm trees. She was 17, Eustace was 19 years her senior then. She had blushed, but with happiness. He was all a thrill with courage, love and hope.

"Dear," he spoke tenderly, "do you remember that Arbor day six years ago when we planted each one of these trees? They were saplings then. Just as they have grown in strength, so has my love for you. Now I am going away. Oh, I hope when I return I will be prepared to take you in my arms as your future husband, just as these growing branches entwined and protect. It shall be so if my fidelity can bring happiness about," pledged Eustace, by perfect faith and affection in her true blue eyes.

It was then that, with the vehemence of an onrushing storm, her father came upon them. He thrust the fond lovers rudely apart. Then he burst forth into bitter abuse of young Lee. He taunted him with his poverty, he paraded his own great wealth. He ordered him from the place, never to return.

"As to you," he shouted fiercely at his daughter, "remember your promise to your dying mother that you would never leave me while I lived. Think of one sister, who married a heartless scoundrel and was killed by his neglect. Think of the other, an alien, a lonely divorced woman. No more to one your inferior, never to anyone will I allow you to go and leave me unless it be with my curse and disinherited in my will!"

"My pledge to my mother is still sacred," spoke Eustace simply, but in heartbroken tones. "Good-by, Eustace, my only love! We shall never meet again, but I swear solemnly that of you, and of you only, I shall think until I die."

"And if," cried Eustace Lee—"the memory of your love I will value and cherish more than all the world of women beside!"

Five Years Later.

Then a last sight of Eustace in her father's arms, of the malignantly scowling face of the old tyrant and Eustace Lee set out to enter a new life with only the promise of the woman he loved as a guide to keep him steadfast and true.

It was five years later when he returned to his native village. He had left it an orphan, poor, with his own way to make, a world unassisted. He came back a skilled architect of no little fame. It was to find the old Marsh home burned down, its former occupants reported traveling abroad, in constant search of health for the hour, complaining old man whose money brought him no solace or happiness.

The beautiful grounds lay neglected and overgrown with weeds. They had but one attraction for Eustace. The two trees beneath which he and Eustace, boy and girl, had pledged their troth, had thrived and grown. The spot became a mecca to Eustace.

Under the spreading branches he would sit for hours, dreaming of his absent sweetheart, wondering if she was still as true as he.

Under the Two Trees.

Then suddenly he gave a great start and stared weirdly in the direction of the two trees. He strained his vision to view a female figure standing directly beneath their branches. It was quiescent, statue-like, yet it seemed to exercise some indefinable influence that drew him towards the spot. Slowly he advanced, nearer and nearer he approached a girl in form robed in white, statue-like in pose, but true blue eyes and a longing smile showed forth from the lovely face.

"Eustace!" he cried in a gasp, and at once recoiled when he stood. She put forth both hands. He was all a tremble as he indicated them in his own. She transfixed his gaze. Thus in silence, rapturous, intense, they stood for some moments.

"You have returned," he managed to utter, incoherently, at last. "As you see," responded the sweet, tranquil tones of yore. "And alone!" Her glance fell, as her face saddened. A tear stole down her cheek. "My father died six months ago," she said.

'Now! Bring on the Cold Weather!'

Bennie and Pete Rabbit Sandman story of the trick they play on old Mr. Fox, who in the end suspects something.

By Mrs. F. A. Walker.

PETE and Bennie Rabbit were running through the woods one morning, wondering what they could do to have some fun, when Pete said: "Oh, let's go down to old Mr. Fox's house and get him to tell us a funny story."

When they reached Mr. Fox's house he was out, and so was his wife, but on the sill of the window Bennie saw

Mr. Fox's pipe and that made him think of something. "Oh, let us play a trick on Mr. Fox," he said to Pete.

"Suppose he gets angry and chases us," said Pete, who remembered that Mr. Fox could get very cross.

"Oh, he won't know who did it," said Bennie. "Did what?" asked Pete.

"Fixed his pipe," said Bennie, laughing so hard he had to lean against the house.

"I am going to get some mustard seeds," he explained to Pete, "and grind them up. Then we will come back and put it in Mr. Fox's pipe. Of course, we will put a little bit of tobacco on the top, so he won't know the mustard is there."

"But if he does not know it is there, what fun will there be?" asked Pete. "Oh, he'll know it is there all right, after he lights the pipe and takes a few puffs," said Bennie. "Come along; pretty soon they came back, Bennie carrying something in a paper and looking all around to make sure that no one was at home."

Then Bennie stole up to the window and took the pipe. He put in the mustard and patted it into the pipe, and then he put a little bit of tobacco, which he took from his father's box, on top and put the pipe back on the sill.

"Now we must hide where we can see the fun," said Bennie. "Right behind that rock with the bushes around it is the very place."

Pretty soon they heard someone coming. Bennie and Pete Rabbit peeked through the bushes. "Here he is," said Bennie, "now keep very still."

"...said Mr. Fox, stretching himself as he came up to his door. 'I am tired as a dog is after he has chased me,' he said. 'I guess I will take a smoke before Mrs. Fox returns. She does dislike the smell of my pipe so much.'"

Mr. Fox sat down in an old rocker he kept just outside the door, where he had to sit when he smoked, because Mrs. Fox wouldn't let him smoke in the house.

Bennie and Pete watched him take a match from his vest pocket and strike

"Fixed his pipe," said Bennie, laughing so hard he had to lean against the house.

"I am going to get some mustard seeds," he explained to Pete, "and grind them up. Then we will come back and put it in Mr. Fox's pipe. Of course, we will put a little bit of tobacco on the top, so he won't know the mustard is there."

"But if he does not know it is there, what fun will there be?" asked Pete. "Oh, he'll know it is there all right, after he lights the pipe and takes a few puffs," said Bennie. "Come along; pretty soon they came back, Bennie carrying something in a paper and looking all around to make sure that no one was at home."

Then Bennie stole up to the window and took the pipe. He put in the mustard and patted it into the pipe, and then he put a little bit of tobacco, which he took from his father's box, on top and put the pipe back on the sill.

"Now we must hide where we can see the fun," said Bennie. "Right behind that rock with the bushes around it is the very place."

Pretty soon they heard someone coming. Bennie and Pete Rabbit peeked through the bushes. "Here he is," said Bennie, "now keep very still."

"...said Mr. Fox, stretching himself as he came up to his door. 'I am tired as a dog is after he has chased me,' he said. 'I guess I will take a smoke before Mrs. Fox returns. She does dislike the smell of my pipe so much.'"

Mr. Fox sat down in an old rocker he kept just outside the door, where he had to sit when he smoked, because Mrs. Fox wouldn't let him smoke in the house.

It was then that, with the vehemence of an onrushing storm, her father came upon them. He thrust the fond lovers rudely apart. Then he burst forth into bitter abuse of young Lee. He taunted him with his poverty, he paraded his own great wealth. He ordered him from the place, never to return.

"As to you," he shouted fiercely at his daughter, "remember your promise to your dying mother that you would never leave me while I lived. Think of one sister, who married a heartless scoundrel and was killed by his neglect. Think of the other, an alien, a lonely divorced woman. No more to one your inferior, never to anyone will I allow you to go and leave me unless it be with my curse and disinherited in my will!"

"My pledge to my mother is still sacred," spoke Eustace simply, but in heartbroken tones. "Good-by, Eustace, my only love! We shall never meet again, but I swear solemnly that of you, and of you only, I shall think until I die."

"And if," cried Eustace Lee—"the memory of your love I will value and cherish more than all the world of women beside!"

Five Years Later.

Then a last sight of Eustace in her father's arms, of the malignantly scowling face of the old tyrant and Eustace Lee set out to enter a new life with only the promise of the woman he loved as a guide to keep him steadfast and true.

It was five years later when he returned to his native village. He had left it an orphan, poor, with his own way to make, a world unassisted. He came back a skilled architect of no little fame. It was to find the old Marsh home burned down, its former occupants reported traveling abroad, in constant search of health for the hour, complaining old man whose money brought him no solace or happiness.

The beautiful grounds lay neglected and overgrown with weeds. They had but one attraction for Eustace. The two trees beneath which he and Eustace, boy and girl, had pledged their troth, had thrived and grown. The spot became a mecca to Eustace.

Under the spreading branches he would sit for hours, dreaming of his absent sweetheart, wondering if she was still as true as he.

Under the Two Trees.

Then suddenly he gave a great start and stared weirdly in the direction of the two trees. He strained his vision to view a female figure standing directly beneath their branches. It was quiescent, statue-like, yet it seemed to exercise some indefinable influence that drew him towards the spot. Slowly he advanced, nearer and nearer he approached a girl in form robed in white, statue-like in pose, but true blue eyes and a longing smile showed forth from the lovely face.

"Eustace!" he cried in a gasp, and at once recoiled when he stood. She put forth both hands. He was all a tremble as he indicated them in his own. She transfixed his gaze. Thus in silence, rapturous, intense, they stood for some moments.

"You have returned," he managed to utter, incoherently, at last. "As you see," responded the sweet, tranquil tones of yore. "And alone!" Her glance fell, as her face saddened. A tear stole down her cheek. "My father died six months ago," she said.

"And otherwise" he questioned, stammering, breathlessly. "There are no others," responded Eustace. "There was only you. Through all the years I wondered if you remembered our pledge. I came to the city and found—and found!"

"That you alone filled my heart!" cried Eustace. "Oh, my cherished love! Can you not understand that, and, true to the end, had you passed by, my heart would quiver under your feet had it lain for a century dead!"

She turned towards the beautiful house, her face radiant in the white, pure moonlight. She drew closer, closer into his sheltering arms as she murmured rapturously:

"Your home—mine!"

"We better run away while he is in the house," said Pete. "He will come out in a minute and he might happen to think of us and look about."

So off ran Bennie and Pete Rabbit, but if they had waited a minute they would have seen Mr. Fox come to the door of his house, look very hard at the bushes around his yard and then listen.

"Yes, I heard someone running," he said, shaking his head. "I wonder, now, if I am thinking right."

Mr. Fox picked up his pipe and thumped it on the sill, and out came the queer-looking tobacco. "Yes, sir," he said, "mustard seed ground up. I

When Flowers Are Sweetest.

Flowers are more fragrant when the sun is not shining on them, according to a French scientist, because the oil that produces the perfume is forced out by the water pressure in the plant cells and this is diminished by sunlight.

SAYS WOMEN ARE CRAZY ABOUT THIS

Using gasoline to dry clean everything and save $5 in an hour.

Dry cleaning at home is all the rage here, says a well-known downtown druggist. Any woman can do five dollars' worth of dry cleaning at home at very little cost by dissolving two ounces of solvite in two gallons of gasoline; then immerse the articles to be cleaned; rub a little and in a few moments the gasoline evaporates and the articles cleaned look as bright and fresh as new.

Dry clean your own silk waists, dresses, ribbons, belts, kid gloves, satin shoes, evening slippers, fine lace, net work, woollens, dresses, children's coats, fur, velvets, neckties, shawls, gentlemen's garments, fancy vests, lace curtains, rugs, in fact, everything that would be ruined by washing with soap and water. Nothing will fade, shrink or wrinkle, making pressing unnecessary.

Dry cleaning at home is inexpensive and effects a tremendous saving in the household and is really just as easy as laundering. Any druggist will sell two ounces of solvite which is simply a gasoline soap and your grocer or a garage will supply the gasoline. Then a wash boiler or diaphan completes the outfit.—ADV.

The Jarr Family

Written for the Post-Dispatch
By Roy L. McCardell

Mr. Jarr, Poor Man, Cannot Find Peace Except by Talking War.

THE weather, the cares of the day and worrying over getting off the children for school all had "gotten on her nerves," as Mrs. Jarr expressed it. So, when friend husband returned from the trade trenches in a more or less cheerful mood he did not find his good lady in a receptive one. "Jenkins, the bookkeeper, got back from his vacation today," began Mr. Jarr. "This time he took a trip to the Canadian Rockies. He looks fine, says he had a great time!"

"His wife wasn't with him?" queried Mrs. Jarr coldly. "I forgot to ask, and he didn't mention it," replied Mr. Jarr. Mrs. Jarr sniffed. "That shows how much a man cares for his own wife, or his friends care for her," she said. "Of course, Mrs. Jenkins would drive me crazy if I had her around me a day, and I don't blame Jenkins for running away from her; the only wonder is he ever came back. Still, a good wife is a good wife and should be appreciated even if there is no living with her."

This astounding philosophy was too much for Mr. Jarr. He only murmured weakly that Jenkins said the trip was one of over 800 miles and that the scenery was grand. "Much he saw of the scenery!" sneered Mrs. Jarr. "I have yet to know of men going on trips, whether fishing trips or hunting trips or scenery trips, that they weren't simply drinking trips!"

"Gee whis!" cried Mr. Jarr. "You are always finding fault when I come home and don't start a general conversation, and yet when I try to tell you little happenings of the day I think may interest you, you only bowl me out!"

Mrs. Jarr regarded him with an air of offended surprise. "Please do not use such terms here," she said coldly. "That may be the way Mr. Jenkins speaks to his wife, but at least I do not deserve it. Furthermore, I am not interested in either Mr. Jenkins or his wife. His going away on this trip was one excuse for staying out late to see him to the night train, and I only wonder he didn't return on a night train so you would have another excuse to be out till all hours!"

Then Mr. Jarr remembered that when Jenkins had gone away he and Jenkins the cashier, had seen him off on the midnight train, playing Kelly pool in the interim and a cafe-between the end of the business day and the midnight train. Mr. Jarr had forgotten, but Mrs. Jarr had not.

"Doggone it!" he growled. "What is a safe topic, anyway? Shall I talk about an evangelist I read about today?"

"You had better talk with him rather than about him," said Mrs. Jarr. "Mother and I went to hear one once and the way he spoke of men like Jenkins and that man Rangle, and that awful Gus, who runs the dreadful place on the corner of this street, would have done you good to hear. At every word he spoke about those friends of yours mother nudged me in the ribs. When the meeting was over my side was sore."

"What did he say about them?" asked Mr. Jarr.

"I refuse to repeat his language," said Mrs. Jarr. "Only a reformer, only someone doing great good in this world can use such language. It was terrible!"

"If I used it I'd be arrested!" suggested Mr. Jarr.

But Mrs. Jarr evidently had no opinion to express in the matter. "Well, then," said Mr. Jarr, "the only safe topic for a man to broach in his own home is the war. I see the English are still battering at the Dardanelles and that the Russians are breaking all Marathon records."

"Please don't talk about that dreadful war!" cried Mrs. Jarr. "No woman cares to hear about it, so please don't discuss it!"

"Right you are," replied Mr. Jarr. "And therefore, I repeat, the war in Europe is the only safe topic for any married man to endeavor to discuss."

But Mrs. Jarr said she could not see it.

FRAIL, SICKLY CHILD

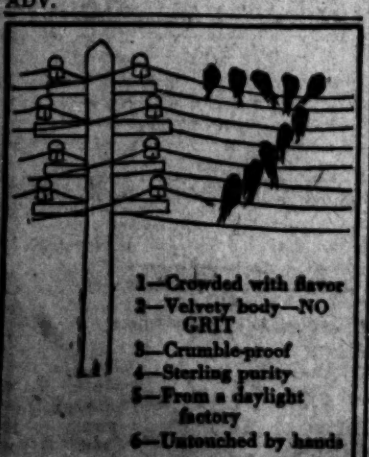

Father Tells How Boy Was Restored to Health and Strength.

We have always told the people of St. Louis that Vinol is a wonderful body builder for ailing children. Here is more proof of the fact:—

J. L. Albury of Miami, Fla., says: "Our little boy was puny and cross from the time he was born, and we hardly knew how to handle him. When he was three years old he was weak and so cross we could hardly live with him, and we could not get him to eat anything. A friend asked us to try Vinol. We did so and you should see the change it has made in him. He is now a good-natured, healthy youngster, ready to eat at any time, and we cannot praise Vinol enough."

Vinol is especially efficient in building up puny, weak, ailing children, because of the real cod liver extractives, peptonate of iron and beef essence which contains, and as it is without oil or grease children love to take it.

Chester Kent & Co., Chemists. Vinol is sold in St. Louis by the Wolff-Wilson Drug Co. and by all other drug stores in St. Louis that display the Vinol Agency sign.—ADV.

Cause and Effect.

A BUSINESS man met a lawyer and a doctor recently. In a conversation with the lawyer, Mr. Smith, whom he met first, he remarked that he needed certain medical attention and was debating what physician to consult. The lawyer mentioned Dr. Jones, and on being questioned about him said he was first-class, but that he was rather high priced. "In fact," said the lawyer, "his fees are so steep I always make him wait a long time for his money."

Later in the day the business man visited Dr. Jones, and in his conversation with the doctor he said he had met Smith, the lawyer. The business man asked the doctor what he thought about the lawyer. "Oh," replied the doctor, "he's all right, except a little slow in settling his bills. Truth is, he keeps me waiting for my money so long that I always charge him an extra fee for the delay."
